

Victoria Times Set For Historic Move

40-Year Fort And Broad Street
Tenure Ends With 4-Star Final

By LLOYD BAKER

One of the biggest changes in the fast growth of Victoria since World War 2 is being seen this week-end.

After tonight the Victoria Daily Times will no longer be situated at the corner of Fort and Broad Streets.

The five-story building which has housed the evening newspaper the past 40 years will be empty of all but memories of a great period in the newspaper history of British Columbia.

On Monday a new era begins for Vancouver Island's "fast growing newspaper" at the new $1,000,000 Fountain Circle plant of Victoria Press Ltd. on the outskirts of the business district.

Away from the heart of the city, the new Times will continue its policy of closeness with the community which, since its first publication day of June-9, 1884, has earned it the title of "The Home Newspaper."

Last Edition From Old Building

What you are reading now is the last of the daily editions of the Times to be printed at the downtown building which has been placed on the market making way for still another stride in the fast-growing pace of the city.

No longer will the Fort and Broad intersection vibrate with the beat of the fast-rolling presses as the editions of the Times are rushed to its thousands of subscribers.

No longer will pedestrians be dodging the piles of bicycles stacked against the building by the carrier boys at the afternoon rush hour, or hazard life and limb when the street sellers tumble out with their arm loads of papers and shouts of "Paperette Times."

No longer will reporters be hustling into the "old home" anxious to reach their typewriters to tell of war or marriage, revival meeting or political rumpus, prize fight or temperance campaign, plane-crash or murder. Next copies of the newspaper will fly off a huge five-unit Goss press which has been in the process of assembly at the ultra-modern Douglas-Street plant the last six to seven weeks, a press capable of turning out 40,000 copies of a 40-page paper in 60 minutes.

The Times will lead the way in the operation of the new press which it will share jointly with the morning newspaper, the Colonist, along with other machinery.

This newspaper will publish first at the new plant with the Colonist following on Tuesday.

It should be noted in this connection that the two local newspapers will continue to operate separately from an editorial point of view, with all of the competition of previous years.

Economy Move To Benefit Public

The amalgamation, going no further than the mechanical and advertising departments, was brought about as an economy measure in providing faster and better service to the people.

As soon as the final edition of the Times was "put to bed" in the composing room this afternoon, gangs of movers swarmed over the building.

Costly linotype machines and other valuable equipment were manhandled through a break in the fifth story wall of the building, and lowered cautiously to Broad Street, which had been barricaded to traffic.

Heavy metal pots, cases of type, desks, typewriters, chairs, wastepaper baskets, picture cuts and matrices by the thousands, bound volumes of the newspaper from its inception, copy paper for next week's editions, and a hundred-and-one other items were hustled out of windows and doors and rushed to the new plant.

As the movement progressed, a small group of employees—seven in all—thought of the day when they moved into the Broad and Fort plant back in 1911.

After so many years it was only natural that such people as Bill Lemm, the "grand-dad" of the Times, had nostalgic feelings as the old stepped aside for the new.

Worked On Times From 1897

Bill went to work for the Times in 1897 and is still going strong in the newspaper's business office.

The other six veterans who saw the move into the downtown plant and are watching the present move are Roy Shields, Arthur Dods, Jimmy Welte and Clyde Macdonald of the composing room; Len Acton of the engraving department, and Archie Willis, managing editor.

They can recall many interesting and anxious moments in their long association with the newspaper "game" in Victoria and tell many a story of Victoria which made headlines all over the continent.

Original Building At View, Broad

Those seven old-time employees remember, too, the first Times building—a shabby, cramped plant on Broad Street at a spot where View Street now cuts through to Government Street.

The original plant went out in a blaze of glory in 1910 when one of the city's most disastrous fires broke out in the store of David Spenced Ltd.

Flames from the Government Street store engulfed the block from Fort Street to Tronace Alley and several buildings were destroyed.

The Times building did not actually burn, but smoke and water put its machinery out of commission.

The newspaper's new building at Fort and Broad was not ready for occupancy, but the Times came out on time. Business and news staffs worked in the old building, and the paper was published in the Colonist plant.

The Colonist press was used on a second occasion to publish the Times, which repaid the morning "opposition" by printing its paper three times when machinery failed.

Then came the day in 1911 when the Times staff was reunited in the new building where publication has continued, with the exception of Sundays and certain holidays, until today.

The old Times building was torn down. The city acquired sufficient property to extend View Street through from Broad to Government, and a great building boom burst on Victoria. The Central Building and the adjoining Union Building and Royal Trust Building were constructed, and later the Arcade Building was built by Spencers.

TO START BIG PRESS

Lieutenant-Governor Clarence Wallace will officiate at a unique ceremony Monday.

He will press the button which starts the new high-speed press on which the Victoria Daily Times will be printed in future at the new $1,000,000 plant of Victoria Press Ltd. near the Fountain Circle.

His Honor will start the 80-page press rolling at 2 Monday afternoon.

BLIND 20 YEARS, BLOW OF FALL RESTORES SIGHT

WASHINGTON (AP)—For 20 years, newspaper man Frank Kennedy has been almost totally blind.

Then, April 8, he struck a chest while leaping from bed. Today Kennedy is exuberantly happy. That blow he got now seems to have restored partial vision. He can pick out the figures on playing cards, spell out newspaper headlines.

Doctors say Kennedy is and will continue to be blind in his right eye. The left eye had developed a cataract. The blow on the edge of the chest made the cataract drop below the pupil, restoring some measure of sight.

Allied Tanks Strike Ahead Seek Foe Without Success

Prowl No-Man's Land For Fourth Day; Find Reds Have Pulled Back

TOKYO (AP)—United Nations tank-infantry columns clanked into the Korean no-man's-land on the hunt for withdrawing Communist forces.

"This isn't a general advance," said a spokesman at United States Eighth Army headquarters, "but we're sparing for an opening."

The armored columns struck ahead on the western front for the fourth consecutive day.

The Reds had pulled back on the central front. They withdrew on a smaller scale on the western front.

The spring drive that began April 22 had wilted in its first stage. Now the United Nations army was taking up slack in the lines.

Except for the Royal Gloucester Battalion which was badly mauled, no Allied units suffered severely in the Red drive which stopped just short of Seoul.

The Chinese and Red Korean forces suffered heavily, however. Lt. Gen. James A. Van Fleet, Eighth Army commander, estimated the number of Red casualties in the bogged spring drive at about 70,000. A daily compilation of U.N. air and ground forces communique tolls placed the enemy dead and wounded at around 50,000.

Eighth Army staff officers reported Red troop movements in rear areas. Field reports Saturday listed 21,000 men and 500 horses north of Chupchon on the central front.

Presence of mine fields on the western front north of Seoul also indicated the Reds were planning another drive.

A.P. correspondent Robert E. Eason at Eighth Army Headquarters reported the general belief is that the next Red shove won't come immediately. When it does, army sources said, it will be in the form of pressure on Seoul.

Eason said most military men believe the Reds will need more armor than they have displayed up to the present to sweep around behind U.N. forces defending Seoul.

Chinese Reds offered no fight as the United Nations line was pushed forward northwest of Seoul in the region of the Pukhan River.

21-Gun Salute Will Mark Anniversary

A 21-gun salute will be fired by Canadian Army gunners here next Saturday marking the 14th anniversary of the coronation of King George VI.

The salute will be fired at noon from Work Point. Salutes will also be fired at Vancouver and in all provincial capitals and at Ottawa.

Set For Typhoon

MANILA (AP)—Red Cross emergency crews were ordered to stand by tonight as a tropical typhoon roared across the Philippine Island chain.

Present U.S. Power Can Win In Korea—M'Arthur

WASHINGTON (AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur testified today that if the United States unleashes its power it could defeat Communist China without increasing its over-all military manpower.

The deposed Pacific commander said it would take "only a relatively small fraction" of the total U.S. manpower goal of 3,462,000 to carry out his proposed campaign in Asia.

For the third day, MacArthur was back in the witness chair before Senators inquiring into his dismissal as Far Eastern commander and the policy differences which led President Truman to recall him.

MacArthur had advocated the bombing of Chinese Manchurian bases, a blockade of Communist China and use of Chinese Nationalist troops from Formosa.

Truman and administration leaders have opposed this program on the ground that it might lead to another world war.

In reply to questions, MacArthur said that to utilize full U.S. power in the Far East, "... there should be added increments of both the air and the navy."

"I believe these increments would be readily available without prejudice to any other area or operation that is in contemplation," he added. Chief targets of the tireless 71-year-old general were President Truman and Defence Secretary George C. Marshall.

The former Pacific commander made it plain that he will give no quarter to Truman and Marshall in his fight for authority for his successor, Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, to push the war harder against the Chinese Communists.

Beer For Churchill

LONDON (Reuters)—A shipment of 300 bottles of specially brewed strong beer arrived at Winston Churchill's home today—Denmark's "thank you" to Britain's wartime leader in aiding Denmark to oust the Nazis.

'HOW I TOOK THE STONE'

A Piece Of The Stone Lying On The Highway

On their return to Scotland Alan and the author stopped in an Alan's father. A little doubtful as to how he would feel about his son's recent escapade they were relieved to find him so full of pride he could hardly speak. In today's chapter they hear of Kay's journey.

TIMES' PHONE STILL B3131

The telephone switchboard number of the Victoria Daily Times will remain Beacon 3131 in the move of the newspaper to its new "home" at 2631 Douglas St.

During business hours calls will continue to be sent through this number to all departments of the newspaper plant.

Last Times Printed At Downtown Plant

Perhaps a little sad as he reads last Times to be printed at the Fort and Broad Street plant of the newspaper is business office employee Bill Lemm, who has been on staff 54 years. "Going to seem funny leaving the old plant," said Bill who, with six others still on payroll, moved with paper into downtown office in 1911. He started with Times in 1897.

Seattle Blows Top When Troops From Korea Dock

SEATTLE (AP)—America's first army fighting men to return from Korea on rotation came home today—1,502 strong—and were given a blow-off-the-lid reception by a grateful people.

From the time the big grey U.S. navy transport, the General Leroy Eltinge, poked her nose under sunny skies into the entrance of Elliott Bay the din commenced.

Sirens and whistles blew. Jet planes and bombers screamed overhead. Fire boats cascaded gallons of spray, and scores of small boats darted like doodlebugs around the slow-moving troopship.

A 19-gun salute boomed the arrival. Full-throated cheers rose in seemingly endless waves from the packed dock at the Seattle port of embarkation as the 15,000-ton Eltinge inched alongside.

Bands blared and drum major-ettes cavorted against a background of waving hands.

The rain first came as a shower at noon Friday. It then rained continually from 7:30 in the evening until 2:30 this morning.

As for the forecast for the next 24 hours, the weatherman said Victorians would get sunshine and were safe to venture out without raincoats and umbrellas.

Another Woodward was in Government House last night—U.S. Ambassador Stanley. He'll find plenty of good neighbors and a warm welcome in this town.

There's nothin' quite so empty in this world as an empty newspaper office.

But somehow we kin feel Benny Nicholas lookin' over our shoulder and whisperin': "Good luck, boys."

Syria-Israel Border Fights Continuing

Sides Claim Other Violated Armistice

TEL AVIV (AP)—Syrian army forces supported by artillery and mortars today resumed the attack inside Israeli territory in the demilitarized zone, an Israeli army spokesman announced.

The spokesman said the Syrians assaulted the height of Tel Al Muteila in continued disregard of yesterday's United Nations-sponsored cease-fire agreement.

"He said Israeli forces repulsed the attack after an 80-minute battle and inflicted heavy casualties. Israeli forces also were reported to have used mortar and artillery fire.

(A report from the frontier quoted an Israeli spokesman as saying Syrian troops were consolidating and fortifying their positions inside the demilitarized zone.)

Israeli sources said three Syrian air force planes flew over the battle area today but did not drop bombs.

The cease-fire agreement halted fighting yesterday only briefly. It was shattered last night by heavy artillery and mortar fire across a wide sector of the demilitarized zone, a buffer area between Israel and Syria set up in the armistice which ended the Palestine war in 1948.

Each side claimed the other violated the cease-fire agreement by attacking in the demilitarized zone north of the Sea of Galilee. Each claimed also to have beaten back the attacks and to have inflicted heavy casualties.

Jail Throws Out Scottish Patriot

LONDON (Reuters)—Wendy Wood, 37-year-old firebrand Scottish-Nationalist who chose jail rather than pay a fine for obstructing a London policeman, had her freedom again today—against her will.

Turned out from Holloway Women's Prison Friday night, she said the fines which she refused to pay in court Wednesday were paid anonymously for her against her wishes.

Miss Wood was arrested when trying to hold a meeting in London's Trafalgar Square against police orders.

'HOW I TOOK THE STONE'

Kay Calmly Dodges Police Check-Ups

Meanwhile, she was asking her way west, all the time trying to reach her Scots friend near Oxford, who she was certain, would give her asylum. She had almost forgotten her sickness in her desire to win through.

At length she became worried. She had left a complete chain of people behind her who had directed a girl in a Ford Anglia to Oxford, and she was certain that they would tell the police when her description was circulated.

She saw a signpost for Birmingham, and decided to head there. She had a friend there—an English girl, but Kay was certain that the bonds of friendship were stronger than the bonds of nationalism.

All this time Kay had been giving lifts to anyone who thumbed her. First two old ladies with whom she exchanged recipes, and then a soldier who showed her a short cut which saved her many miles.

As well as a Christian act, it was good camouflage, and may have saved her from the police. When she neared Birmingham she saw a great deal of police activity.

At one point she saw police patrols checking every car that passed their check point. Kay casually turned down a side road and drove back the way she had come, and probed out another route where there was less inspection.

At length she reached her friend's house. She stopped the car outside and rang the doorbell. Her friend answered the door, but before she could find a word to express her pleasure, Kay told her:—

"I'm a fugitive. I've got part of the Stone of Destiny with me."

Strong Bonds Of Friendship

"It doesn't matter," said her friend. "You're a friend of mine and that's all that matters."

Together they concocted a story to tell to the girl's mother. They decided to say that Kay had been to Oxford to collect her brother's car, as he, in the forces was about to be posted to Korea.

Since the roads were so bad, she had decided to leave the car at Birmingham and go on by train.

Kay was introduced to the mother, who thought her a very brave girl to have motored all the way from Oxford over such foul roads.

For the rest of Christmas Day she sat playing party games and trying to look as if she had had at least one night's sleep in the last three.

When we had heard Kay's story, Alan and I felt quite happy. We crept upstairs too exhausted now to notice anything but our glorious beds.

We sank on them stiff-thighed and weary. It must have been after 3 o'clock.

We rose at 9 o'clock, for although we could have slept longer I wanted to get into my usual haunts and allay any suspicions that my absence might have occasioned.

After breakfast, we went out to start the car, still filthy after its 1,300 miles continuous running. It took us almost an hour to start it and thereafter it was a constant source of trouble.

It is almost uncanny that 13-year-old car should have carried us so far and so well, only to show its age when its important work had been done.

As soon as I appeared in the club several people came forward to congratulate me. "Don't congratulate me," I said.

"You're being far too complimentary. I would have given my right arm to do what they did"—and thereafter I broke into praise of the unknowns.

It was a formula which I used often, both with the police and with my friends, and it never failed.

It Was A Well-Kept Secret

It was not until some of the story leaked out that some of my closer acquaintances knew I was lying, and even as I write most of my friends are ignorant of the part I played.

But it was not to talk that I had come into town that morning, but to see Neil.

First I found Gavin, whom I had not seen since we drove away and left him on Christmas morning. He had walked for a while, and then, believing a detective was following him had taken a train to Rugby.

At Rugby he was still certain he was being trailed, so he had taken the train to Crewe. Finally convinced he had shaken off his pursuer, he had come back to Glasgow.

Neil was finishing his lunch when I saw him. He immediately made excuses to his friends, and we walked outside together. He congratulated me, and I gave him what details I could.

I told him that the Stone was broken, which dismayed him as much as it had grieved me, and then I told him where our part was hidden, in case I should still be arrested.

As for the small part, I still did not know where it was, for it was in the custody of Kay's unknown friend.

That afternoon Neil had arranged to meet John King and Robert Mason, in the hope that I would by that time have arrived back in Glasgow.

We met in a coffee room in the centre of Glasgow, and I told them the outline of the story.

They had heard the Dean of Westminster on the radio the previous night. He had lamented "this cunningly planned and carefully executed crime" and we were all highly delighted at that.

The authorities were treating it as an affair of first magnitude. We agreed to meet that night to see what our next step should be.

Motor Firm Sponsoring Film Series On Driving

Victoria high school students may soon be taught how to drive their cars with greater safety.

General Motors of Canada are sponsoring the idea. They have produced a series of films suited to showing in secondary schools. The films give audio-visual training in safety driving and will be made available by dealers.

Some of the films were shown yesterday to members of the Greater Victoria School Board, members of the City police force, aldermen and other interested parties.

Explaining why the course was being specially directed towards high school students W. H. Graham, public relation officer of General Motors of Canada, said that it was among the 16-25 year-old group that they could look for better driving.

Of sixty-four classes of drivers examined by an insurance company, Mr. Graham said that the best records were held by farmers, then executives and then school teachers. At the bottom of the list were traveling salesmen and in 60th position were drivers under 25 years of age.

"One in every third high school student drives a car," said Mr. Graham, "and very few of them have learned anything about driving beyond what they have to know to pass the test or to actually operate the auto."

"Our films teach the driver the things the driver ought to know," went on Mr. Graham, and he suggested that the Victoria High Schools might consider running the series of films as an extra-curricula course.

"The 12 films make a complete classroom course and wherever courses have been held results have been good," he said.

Among those who heard the talk and saw a sample of the films was J. K. F. English, Chief Inspector of the Greater Victoria School Board.

Annuals, Graduation Occupy City Students

Annual class picnic of Esquimalt High School will be at Beaver Lake on June 8, immediately after school. Students will travel by chartered bus to the lake where they will enjoy swimming and a competitive sports program.

Strong rivalry is anticipated between Mercury, Neptune and Jupiter Houses when Esquimalt's inter-house track meet is held next Wednesday at Bullen's Park.

The committee planning the June 1 graduation party at the Monterey has secured Hughie Grey's orchestra for the event. White will be the color for girls' graduation dresses.

Div. 8 won the class shield for the month of April. Basis of competition, previously unknown, was the number of class members who took the time to vote to decide Esquimalt's May Queen candidate. Winning division had a 100 per cent turnout. During May the amount of penny sacrifice collected will determine the shield winner.

Bill Fletcher, Mount View Scribe editor, hopes to have the annual ready for distribution in early June.

The girls' H-Y mother and daughter banquet at Mount View will be May 14, the day following Mother's Day.

To Crack Down On Meter Violators

City Traffic Surveyor Hoping For More Parking Space Soon

A crackdown on parking meter violators was imminent here today, according to a disclosure by Traffic Surveyor Robert Doble.

He is making a study of parking violations and meters to discover a method of ferreting out the offenders.

In a report Mr. Doble claimed motorists "deliberately evade the police checking system and render a large number of meters unusable by the general public."

Mr. Doble, who heads the city's newly instituted Traffic Survey Section, advised he was:

1. Drawing up a detailed plan to ensure authentic results when a mass traffic count is commenced.

2. Hoping that he will soon be able to provide enlarged parking facilities adjacent to Douglas Street.

Mr. Doble said he is also studying Douglas Street with a view to traffic light synchronization.

City Street Traffic Flow Being Studied

A systematic counting of traffic flows at peak periods throughout the city and examination of parking problems firsthand, particularly on Saturdays, is now under way, Robert Doble, city traffic surveyor reported to a transportation meeting Friday.

"I have obtained figures from the Motor Vehicles Branch showing there are approximately 27,300 cars in Greater Victoria area," Mr. Doble said.

Figures from the Petroleum Board, based on gas consumption, showed an average daily use of approximately 20 miles a day for each car.

Mr. Doble said he had obtained details of city terminals of the proposed Pat Bay Highway and new Island Highway and was considering their effect on the general traffic pattern with particular regard to the fountain intersection.

Discussing a survey of on-street and off-street parking facilities, he stated that in the area bounded by Wharf Street, Fisgard, Blanshard and Humboldt there are 3,580 parking places.

A count will shortly be taken of space available in downtown areas to give a complete picture.

AGE PENSION COST IS $35,000,000

Federal And Provincial Governments To Share Expense Of Plan 50-50 Basis

OTTAWA (CP)—A $350,000,000 federal program to provide $40-a-month pensions to Canadians 70 and over, regardless of means, likely will be inaugurated early next year.

Prime Minister St. Laurent told the Commons Friday that no time will be lost in getting the program into operation. He made the statement after informing members that all 10 provinces have agreed to a constitutional amendment which will clear the way for the federal government to enter the pensions field, now under provincial jurisdiction.

The cost of the pensions to all 70 and over will be financed out of taxation but the government has not indicated how the contributions will be collected. A parliamentary committee on old-age security suggested last year the pensions might be financed through a 2 per cent levy on incomes.

Cost To Be Shared 50-50 Basis

Once the new program is in operation, the federal government plans to share on a 50-50 basis with the provinces the cost of pensions to the needy between 65 and 69.

At present, pensions of $40 a month—some of the provinces pay a bit more—go to those of 70 and over who can prove their need for such a payment. The federal government pays 75 per cent of the cost and the provinces the remainder.

Mr. St. Laurent said the federal government does not plan to hold up the pensions program until the provinces agree on a constitutional amendment that would allow them to collect an indirect sales tax of 3 per cent.

There were these other developments: 1. Defence Minister Claxton announced Canada will mobilize a new infantry brigade group for Europe by a unique system of calling on 42 reserve force units to raise the 5,500 to 6,500 men necessary. Recruiting starts Monday.

Initial Wheat Price Set, $1.40

2. Trade Minister Howe announced the initial price for wheat in the coming crop year will be $1.40 a bushel—the same as this year. The initial price for oats will be 65 cents—also unchanged—and that for barley will be 96 cents a bushel, 3 cents higher.

3. During study of his departmental estimates, Labor Minister Gregg estimated it would take three to five months to plan, organize and take a national registration of manpower.

4. Mrs. Ellen Fairclough (P.C., Hamilton West), Labor spokeswoman for her party, urged greater uniformity of federal and provincial labor laws, such as existed during the Second World War.

In his announcement on old-age pensions, Mr. St. Laurent said he likely will ask the Commons Monday to pass an address to the United Kingdom Parliament requesting an amendment to the British North America Act. A similar address likely will be passed by the Senate Tuesday.

The new program is expected to increase the number of Canadians receiving old-age pensions from 300,000 to 800,000. Payments out of the federal treasury, including contributions from the taxpayer, are expected to jump from about $110,000,000 to $350,000,000 a year.

May Tighten Passport Laws

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada is considering means of further tightening passport regulations, informed sources said today.

Loopholes have been plugged since the 1945-46 espionage investigation disclosed Red spies were using illegal Canadian passports, but informants said further undisclosed measures are being considered.

Government officials have taken notice of the current trip to Russia of Jacob Penner, Labor Progressive alderman in Winnipeg, reported to have been present at Russia's May Day celebration.

An official said nothing could be done about trips of that kind "under the present regulations."

Reserve Units To Form New Brigade

Get Job Of Recruiting Troops To Serve In Europe Under Eisenhower

By DOUGLAS HOW

OTTAWA (CP)—A manpower drive to recruit a new army brigade group primarily for Europe will be launched Monday.

It will rely heavily on the traditions and prestige of reserve army units from coast to coast.

Friendship For Russian People Motion Scored

WASHINGTON (UP)—A resolution reaffirming American friendship for the Russian people produced a controversy in the House today.

The resolution was passed unanimously by the Senate Friday but some House members objected that the measure is too conciliatory.

The opposition thinks the resolution should include tougher words along with the profession of friendship. Rep. Charles J. Kersten, R., Wis., has offered a version carrying a bitter condemnation of Communism and calling upon President Truman to explore new ways for government-assisted efforts to overthrow the Soviet Government.

The Senate resolution assures the Russian people that the United States is willing to share "all that is good in atomic energy, asking in return only safeguards against the evil in the atom."

Other Congressional developments:

Marines—House armed services committee members predicted passage of a Senate-approved measure to double the strength of the Marine Corps.

Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga.), who has a different formula for raising the ceiling on the Marines, was expected to provide the only opposition. Vinson would keep the number of leathernecks proportionate to the size of the navy. The Senate has passed the bill that would boost the corps to 400,000 men.

Crime—Senate crime investigators planned to dig deeper into the underworld operations of Frank Costello and his alleged connections with former Mayor William O'Dwyer by questioning New York gambler Irving Sherman. Chairman Herbert R. O'Connor (D-Md.), said the committee will meet "soon" to decide when to call Sherman to describe his friendship with Costello and the 1942 meeting between the underworld boss and O'Dwyer.

Appropriations—A coalition of Republicans and Southern Democrats put another slash in President's budget request as the House lopped 10 per cent off the $6,837,677,465 requested by the President to run 27 federal agencies in the coming fiscal year. The House also slashed 96 per cent of the President's proposed $25,000,000 emergency fund.

Reinforcements—A coalition of Republicans and Southern Democrats put another slash in President's budget request as the House lopped 10 per cent off the $6,837,677,465 requested by the President to run 27 federal agencies in the coming fiscal year.

Fear Four Perished

MONTREAL (CP)—Jean Jette and Jean Charbonneau, both 12, and their Indian guides, Jim Morin and Felix Hendry, disappeared five days ago and are believed to have perished in the dense woods north of Maniwaki, police said today. They were muskrat hunting.

In an unprecedented move, the Government Friday night asked 42 reserve units to shoulder the major responsibility for recruiting the 5,500 to 6,500 men needed for the brigade group itself.

In time they or other reserve units will be asked to raise nearly as many more as replacements.

This will mean in effect partial mobilization of the reserve forces.

VALCARTIER BASE

The formation will be called the 27th Brigade Group and will muster at Valcartier, Que. It will be unique in that it will be made up of composite units of infantry, artillery, armored, engineer and other arms raised by reserve units.

The three infantry battalions, for instance, will each be made up of five companies. Each company will be recruited by a separate reserve force regiment.

Each company will wear the badges and insignia of the reserve force regiment which raised it. The same system will be followed by the other arms of the service.

A brigade commander and unit commanders will be named soon, Defence Minister Claxton, in making the announcement in the Commons and later over the CBC, said the present plan is that the new brigade group "would be available to become a component of the European Integrated (Atlantic Pact) force commanded by Gen. Eisenhower."

MAY SEE KOREA

The decision about when a Canadian force would go to Europe "will depend on circumstances as they develop, including the course of events in Korea, the speed with which the required troops are raised and trained as well as developments in the North Atlantic Treaty organization."

This was taken as an indication that some of the men or units raised for the 27th brigade may have to go to Korea if that war continues for a long time.

Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes V.C. (P.C.-Nanaimo) asked Mr. Claxton flatly if that is possible. The Minister said it's all one army, that the men in it are available for service anywhere.

(There have been reports that reinforcements available for the special force, 25th brigade, are sufficient only for six months of action. Discharges have numbered more than 1,000 men.)

Arabian Nights Wedding For Egypt's King, Bride

CAIRO (CP)—King Farouk has planned an Arabian nights' honeymoon for Narriman Sadek, 17-year-old beauty who is to become his queen tomorrow. After the Moslem ceremony at Koubbeh Palace the royal couple will travel to Inchass, magnificent country mansion between Cairo and Ismailia on the Suez Canal.

Later the portly monarch will take his bride—whom he met by chance two years ago in a Cairo jewelry shop—to Mersa Matruh, "Blue Lagoon" of the western desert. There, according to legend, Cleopatra used to go swimming.

And in the summer, when the hot dry winds blow across Egypt, they will escape together to the cool Mediterranean, cruising in the white-and-gold royal yacht Mahroussa. They plan to drop anchor off the Italian Isle of Capri.

The commoner's daughter chosen as queen will be married to the king by proxy. An ancient Moslem custom decrees she will wait in another room while the simple ceremony is conducted between Farouk and her "stand-in," Mohammed Aly Sadek, her uncle and Egyptian minister to Holland.

Costly presents have been pouring in for days, but many more are still to come.

Foreign and non-Moslem communities in Egypt have vied with each other. The Italian community gave the royal couple a shiny $10,000 Italian racing car. The Jewish community presented them a set of rich gold plate and vases.

The Greek Patriarch of Alexandria presented a casket in Arab-Persian style of ebony, ivory and mother-of-pearl with an inscribed inscription in Persian verse. It contains 31 ancient gold coins and a string of pure amber beads.

More than $175,000 will be distributed to the poor along with free meals and candies in a general three-day celebration throughout the land.

U.S. Soldiers Well-Treated By Captors

WESTERN FRONT, Korea (AP)—Fifteen U.S. soldiers captured by the Communists a week ago, returned to Allied lines Friday night and told of being interviewed by a Chinese general.

The men said they were well treated and were liberated twice—the second time after they were accidentally recaptured.

"They treated us pretty well, especially after we were moved back from the front-line troops," said a soldier from Baltimore. Censorship prevented naming of the Americans.

"The best one of all was the Chinese general we met—he was a big chunky man and very well dressed. He asked us a lot about our family lives."

The men said all Chinese activities were carried on at night. The Reds and their prisoners lay hidden in their holes all day.

Deadlock On Big Four Meet Not Yet Broken

PARIS (AP)—Russian and Western deputies exchanged more hot words today in their 44th meeting to map talks for a Big-Four Foreign Ministers' conference. The result: Continued deadlock over how the agenda item on disarmament should be worked.

Britain, France and the United States rejected the wording of Soviet Deputy Andrei Gromyko's proposal, which put disarmament of only the Big Four at the top. Gromyko sounded off today with a bitter denunciation of "Western warmongers" and rejected the Western wording which provides for a study of the arms and armies of all countries leading to world-wide disarmament under international control.

Gromyko Friday said Russia would accept the rest of the proposed Western agenda if the word on this one item would be amended his way. Britain's Ernest Davies termed this an ultimatum and said: "It is very difficult to envisage a more cynical and negative proposition."

Without getting any closer to agreement, the four delegations recessed until Monday.

Leaving Home

FROM THE OFFICE IN WHICH THIS is written, a person may look down into Fort Street and see the passing parade of Victoria. So it has seemed to generations of men and women who have worked at The Times since the newspaper was first published in this building, constructed for it 40 years ago. And for the same period the square-faced structure that rises in five stories from the northeast corner of Fort and Broad has been a landmark to Victorians.

Forty years is not an impressive length of time to more ancient cities. In the life of this capital it is substantial. It has seen the growth of a new city, a pulsing, sentient organism of modern living. And in the square-faced building, it has been the job of men and women to record that pulse.

As we leave for our new quarters on Douglas Street, our thoughts turn to the memory of those men and women who made the record, who infused their personalities into the character of The Times, who played their own roles in the development of their city. We find in the recollection of them a sense of pride.

It is a pride, and in later days, an association which has made the building something more than five stories under one roof and between four walls.

It is a sentiment that has made the structure a home in which many of us grew up in our working hours. It is a place of shabby hallways and metal stairs that have echoed to the brisk tread of enthusiastic craftsmen, and to the slow steps of men tired from a long day's work. Its rooms have been carved about and remade to meet the demands of changing times. It is a structure in which there has been insufficient space in recent years.

Its limitation have been damned. Yet, as we come to leave it, we find a little heartbreak at parting.

In the rooms are friendly ghosts. They are the shades of men and women who held the building in an affection we have come to know, people who helped a fellow workman on his job. There are brilliant personalities among them, individuals of national repute, and there are the less distinguished who yet were cherished members of the changing family.

The old Times building has outlived its usefulness for newspaper purposes. It will be laid aside by its present working personnel as something outgrown. So it will be, in the physical sense. Yet in the leaving, there comes a touch of nostalgia, a regret that progress puts behind it this relic of a less impatient age.

A Courageous Judgment

THE MARK OF HISTORY WAS ON the Montreal court judgment this week which ordered Premier Maurice Duplessis to pay $8,123.53 in damages to a restaurant owner named Frank Roncarelli. When Mr. Roncarelli entered suit against the premier, he was admired for his audacity if not for his ingenuity; for in Quebec, Mr. Duplessis is not only premier and attorney-general but, like Pooh-Bah, Lord High Everything Else.

What made this week's judgment significant was that Roncarelli vs. Duplessis was, in many respects, a test case on freedom of worship. For years Mr. Roncarelli, a Canadian of Italian lineage, operated a restaurant in Montreal which was so good that it made him wealthy. He was also a disciple of the small religious sect known as Jehovah's Witnesses, who had incurred the displeasure of many Quebecers by preaching this faith on a door-to-door basis.

Five years ago Mr. Duplessis began throwing these people into jail for distributing pamphlets without a licence. As fast as he threw them in, Mr. Roncarelli bailed them out. Thus flouted, the premier struck at Roncarelli on the economic front: he arbitrarily canceled the restaurant's liquor licence. Forced to close, Roncarelli sued Duplessis in his capacity as attorney-general, claiming that the order had cost him $250,000.

The premier's day in court, when the trial opened a year ago, was a publicity circus. Grinning and waving to friends, the grand chef of the Union Nationale took the stand, quipped with counsel, made it plain that he was a busy man who couldn't spend too much time on this nonsense. The presiding judge, an aging, white-haired Tory named C. G. MacKinnon, soon slowed him down. "Just answer the questions, Mr. Duplessis," he cautioned.

Few spectators at this trial thought that Roncarelli would have a chance. Mr. Justice MacKinnon's judgment demonstrated that, while the premier has been able to introduce restrictive legislation against the press and screen in Quebec, the authority of the courts nevertheless remains (in this jurist's hands, at least) inviolate. This was a wise and courageous decision, the significance of which will be appreciated by many Canadians beyond the borders of Quebec.

Remedy—Simple But Not Easy

FINANCE MINISTER DOUGLAS ABBOTT was, as usual, hitting right at the core of the problem when he spoke on inflation in the Commons this week. As far as he said, one of the most important is the persistence with which "every highly-organized pressure group" in the country is trying to beat rising prices by getting an ever greater share of the national income. Such actions, he emphasized, could only result in more inflation, whether the aim of the group was higher wages or higher selling prices.

The remedy, said Mr. Abbott, does not lie in government decrees. Answering Opposition demands for restrictive measures to hold down the cost of living, the Finance Minister went to the heart of the matter when he declared no government alone could defeat world-wide inflation. "The fundamental cure is for everyone to work harder and longer if we are to maintain our standard of living," he said.

That is a thesis which has been urged in these columns. Since it is a shortage of goods that is sending prices up today we can only combat the trend by producing more goods and curbing our demand. There is no substitute. Sooner or later the country must realize it—as many people are doing—but it must be done before it is too late.

Chips Off The Old Brock

By DAVID BROCK

I HAVE been toying with the idea of home-made wine. I did make half a gallon of daisy wine once, egged on by a wholly unreliable cook book. And fifty stuff it was, too. You couldn't call it wine. It was more of a thin syrup, flavored with compost. I am thinking now of parsnip wine, from a recipe vouched for by Anthony Armstrong (A.A. of Punch) and more or less corroborated in Andre Simon's British Wines & Cordials. A.A. got his recipe from his country neighbors (in Sussex, I think). They told him it was good for making wine out of absolutely any fruit or vegetable except grapes. Grapes, they said, are no good for wine.

A medical student told me long ago (and in verse at that) that home-made dandelion wine will fill you with a two-inch deposit of sludge. I suppose this is true of most other home-made wines. Their lack of clarity is shocking. But some are clearer than others. And in any event, if a small glass or two can give you a splitting headache, it would take a long time to build up any deep slit inside yourself.

I KNEW a chap who made what he called potato champagne, and this left no deposit in him whatsoever, for the very good reason that he never found any way of uncorking it into glasses instead of onto the floor. Sometimes it decanted itself onto the ceiling. Just in time for the final bottle my friend invented a new method of defeating this wild unfettered brew. Before uncorking it, he placed the bottle in a large bowl, and got his wife to hold an inverted smaller bowl above it. In theory, the wine was to jet upwards only to meet the inverted bowl and be deflected down into the lower bowl. In practice, however, the gush was strong enough to find its way out anyhow, and my friend and his wife got more champagne over themselves than a newly christened ship. They almost considered themselves launched.

WHEN I say they were drenched in champagne, I do not want you to imagine that I am unable to tell the difference between real champagne and potato champagne. But I did have another friend who thought the two fluids identical, so help me. Unable to buy a bottle of champagne for some domestic festival during the war, he asked the liquor-store clerk what on earth could cause such a shortage. The clerk said that France was in German hands, according to the Germans and French. My friend said "What's that got to do with it? You just make the stuff out of potatoes, you know."

It was this same friend who tried to send a money order to Germany in 1940 and then accused the post office of hysteria. Things like that somehow refresh me more than wine could. They remind me of the Englishwoman who asked in August, 1940, who this man Hitler was, that everyone was making such a fuss about.

HICK STUFF

THE OTHER day I gave a small radio talk on Provincialism in Canadian Radio. A friend of mine asked if Canada was a safe place to say such things as I dared say. I don't know. But if it isn't, that proves my main point.

DO NOT MISS IT

IN the next issue of this gripping and enthralling column, I hope to tell you the full details of How I Scone. I wouldn't tell you for money, of course. My Scots pride forbids me to accept payment for the world rights to this profitable narrative. No, I am donating every penny to a home for militant Scots. We expect to get six or seven million of them the first term, and more later.

A Cool Retreat

Government House Grounds

—Irving Strickland

His Peeps' Diary Being A Chronicle Of Our Times

MONDAY, 30th—Early to my office, to wrestle with my tax, which I have been long about. My arithmetic being poor, was confused by my reckoning, but set it right in the end and I pray God I do not go to gaol. By and by came Cecil Maiden, who has been in the wilds writing a Normandy romance, of which he has completed some 35,000 words, tho' the scene is a full continent and ocean removed. To the British Daily Colonist, a journal of great age, somewhat saddened that its ancient tower will no longer echo the scrape of quills and rustle of writing powder. Anon to the playing field for a spectacle of baseball, much amused by the naked tussle and portly bearing of Master Barrett and the opening throw of His Worship, like unto the heave of a cricket ball. Chilled by the night's air, retired early but found my carriage surrounded by many more, and immovable, whereupon I basted the post-boy. I put on my flannel nightshirt and slept in comfort.

TUESDAY, 1st—This new month dawned splendidly. To my office, where obtained much tinkle and bustle. By and by came Master John Melville, a man most sensible of brains and tongue, who is our new comptroller, and one that I am glad hath the office. In the streets, encountered Master Norman Baker, whom I have not seen in a decade, and both of us growing somewhat stout, were sore pressed for recognition. At my club, ate an omelette with Master Edward Pearlman, a barrister of great repute. Then home where I found my lawn sprinkled with bone meal and my wife, poor wretch, much offended in the nostrils, particularly during the south wind. After supper, donned my silk breeches and jackanapes coat to attend upon a festival of drama, done by amateurs but withal demm'd pleasing. Was much impressed with the playing of Dame Edith Gibson, a woman of aristocratic nose and hands; and Charles Gibson, who made me sides ake as a doting Romeo of gentle conceit and amiable vacuity. Thus by carriage with Capt. Proudfoot to Despard Avenue, where stands an oak of immense beauty, which the city would fain chop down, but is stayed by the wrath of this fractious legislator.

WEDNESDAY, 2nd—I went forth in good spirits. Dallying in the streets, chatted anon with Master William Campbell, an excellent fellow, he busy with the erection of scaffolds for the movement of printing presses, tho' many passers-by fain would believe his structure a gibbet, for the hanging of perfidious journalists. This glorious sunshine brings forth many young wenches, stylishly accoutred and of flirtatious glance, which makes me sad at the coming-on of my twilight. By and by to the hotel for gossip with Masters Leslie Roberts and John Magor, both downcast because of an unhappy chance: chatting over a cheerful horn across the water, Master Magor knew not that his ship had slipped, and awakened to find himself in this city, which made his wife, poor wretch, most wrathful, and he is in a sad taking. To my club for supper, where came many handsome ladies and gentlemen in splendid attire, altho' Master Wade sipped his stout in a suiting of dark worsted. Anon to the theatre where we saw Master Charles Laughton, a bulbous fellow of Falstaffian wit, much given to scratching himself and bellowing. So home, reflecting that at least half the applause accorded this actor most properly belonged to Will Shakspeare, Chas. Dickens, Tom Wolfe, and the authors quoted.

THURSDAY, 3rd.—At breakfast, my wife chatted with much enthusiasm of a show she'd seen, wherein many ladies of station had set out tables in the manner of fashion, and competed for prizes, tho' she would have changed a tablecloth here and there. My morning was heavy with business, as we leave the city centre in a few days. At my club, discoursed with Master William Gilmore on a new fashion for purchasing tickets to the symphony, wherein his store doth reduce payment in small monthly amounts, by bill; a very seemly and simple stratagem, and I pray God it works. Master Lloyd Detwiler spoke most sensibly of public health, and was much applauded. Chatted anon with Master Logan Mayhew, who takes up residence tomorrow by the water, in a house of dramatic architecture, much discuss'd by passers-by. At supper, my boy sang "Bluebells of Scotland," in a clear, sweet voice, and my wife would have me take him to the church choir forthwith. Somewhat fatigued after many late nights; to bed and gentle repose.

FRIDAY, 4th—This day I took my desk, my rug, my books, my pipes, my tobacco, my pencils, my chairs, my filing cabinet, my pictures, my papyrus, my quill and divers knick-knacks, and moved.

The U.S. Needs Full Support Of Its Allies

By WALTER LIPPMANN From Washington

IT IS a hard fact that American strategic air power cannot be brought to bear effectively against the vital centres of the Soviet Union except with the consent and active collaboration of Great Britain and France. I do not believe that anyone can dispute the truth of this statement. The bomber fleet does not now exist, and could not be constructed in any near future, which can attack in force the Soviet heartland from bases which are under American sovereign control.

Strategic air war against the Soviet Union cannot be conducted with any prospect of being decisive from the Pacific side, that is to say from Japan, Okinawa, Formosa and Alaska. The distances are prohibitive for any sustained assault.

To the nearest and by no means the most important industrial area the round trip from Japan is about 5,000 miles. The vital centres of Russia are in the Urals and in European Russia. They cannot be attacked seriously from the Pacific side. They cannot be attacked seriously across the polar ice. They can be attacked seriously only from the European side. But that attack cannot be delivered now, or in the foreseeable future, except from bases under British and French sovereignty.

This is the hard fact which has to be taken into full account by anyone who wishes to judge responsibly the issues that are now being debated.

The use of the British and French bases, though it would be indispensable if the U.S. were at war with the Soviet Union, cannot be taken for granted under any and all circumstances. The bases do not belong to us: the bases in both British and French territory could not be used unless and until Britain and France had declared war.

It is by no means certain, it cannot at all be taken for granted, that they would or could declare war against the Soviet Union in Europe if the Soviet Union confined its action to the Far East. We must remember that the North Atlantic pact has nothing to do with the Far East.

I am not suggesting or implying that America's British and French allies would not stand by us if we ourselves were the victims of plain aggression in the Far East. I believe they would stand by us.

But I mean to say that we must not count upon their support if, against their strong objections, we involve ourselves in a general Asian war.

They are bound to hesitate to involve themselves in such a war. For if the war is in Asia and if the Soviet Union does not attack in Europe, how sure can we be, how sure have we a right to be, that the French Parliament would vote for a war that invited an invasion, or that Britain would choose to begin a war in which she might receive the first atomic blow from the Russian side.

How would Sen. Taft vote if he were an Englishman and a member of the House of Commons, how would he vote if he were a Frenchman and a member of the French Assembly?

We shall be prudent and wise if we assume that the instinct of survival will act very powerfully in western Europe, and that the people of western Europe are not likely to stake their very existence on the soundness of Gen. MacArthur's ideas.

American alliances in Europe are not yet consolidated, and what is going on here these days is subjecting them to a fearful strain. Perhaps the agitation would become more temperate, if more people understood that the crack up of the alliance would be tantamount, or very nearly so, to the neutralization of our strategic air power as a global force. Were the European bases to be closed to us, our air power would be reduced to a regional instrument incapable of being deterrent or decisive.

What Goes On Behind The Butter Prices? How Much Will We Have To Pay This Year?

From MICHAEL BARKWAY,

Correspondent of Saturday Night, and The Victoria Times, from Ottawa.

THE DAIRY farmers of Canada wanted a floor price of 62 cents a pound for their butter. That was their official demand on the Government: the rumor around Ottawa was that they would be happy to settle for 60 cents a pound. Some members of the Cabinet were against any Government floor price. It wouldn't be fair to name them. They are the men who stand out every time against Government interference in trade: who believe, at least in theory, that the less Government interferes the better. Against them the rough, tough, little warrior, James G. Gardiner of Saskatchewan, fought the farmers' battle. It was he, in February, who pushed through the $65 million bounty to the wheat farmers.

Barkway

This time it was the dairy farmers, and here he had precedent on his side. Gardiner didn't get 62 cents or even 60 cents. He did get 58 cents, and as a sort of compensation to the dairy farmers for the price being lower than they wanted, the 58-cent floor was established for two years.

This butter floor doesn't cost the Government anything. That's to say we don't pay it in taxes: we pay it every time we buy butter. This is how it works. Throughout the summer, when milk production is high, dairy farmers can sell their surplus butter to the Government and get the price equivalent of 58 cents f.o.b. Montreal. This store, accumulated during the summer, is the stock we eat during the winter. The Government sells it out of store at a price sufficient to cover storage costs, shrinkage, etc., but no profit.

This year's butter will cost between 61 and 62 cents wholesale out of store. At retail this will mean a price of 69-70 in the big eastern centres.

It's safe to predict that the price level will not fall below that either this coming winter or next. It could go above it: this will depend on the supply and demand. The Government has made a commitment here which ought to ensure adequate supplies—if it is fulfilled properly when the time comes.

PRODUCTION DECLINE

Canadian butter production has been on the decline, partly because farmers are producing less milk and partly because more of the milk supply has been going into canned and processed goods instead of butter. The floor price will not affect the total milk supply, but it might attract more milk into butter instead of factory products.

It is, however, still highly doubtful whether we can produce enough domestic butter to meet Canadian demands. If we can't, the only way to eke out our stocks is by importing.

Last winter, for example, everyone in the trade knew by October that our stocks were not going to be adequate to last until the new spring production started. From then until early February the trade and the Government argued and finagled about imports. At one time the Minister of Agriculture, this same James G. Gardiner, got the Cabinet to put an embargo on butter imports.

That was reversed within a week, and a small amount of New Zealand butter was bought. But it was too late in the season, and the quantity was too small, to offset the wave of speculative buying which occurred in March in anticipation of the exhaustion of the Government stores.

ANNUAL REVIEW

For the next two years the Government has undertaken that the stocks of Canadian butter will be reviewed at December 1. By then it should certainly be possible to say how much extra we will need to meet our needs, and the Government has undertaken to see that negotiations are then started with New Zealand to import enough butter to meet them.

But the imports will not be allowed to cut the price, which is deliberately fixed to protect the Canadian dairy industry. We might be more sure of getting all we need from New Zealand if these negotiations were scheduled for November instead of December. But if the Government makes good its present promise we should be sure of enough imports to stop the price going much above a 69-70-cent level at retail.

HOME GARDEN

by Jack Beasfall

There is always a tense eagerness when the morning mail arrives, for among the mass of advertising, "valuable money-saving coupons" and so forth, are the letters from gardeners telling of their successes and failures.

Included in today's mail was the familiar brown envelope of the Department of Agriculture containing two new bulletins.

While both are of great interest, one is of the utmost importance to the home gardener. Officially, it is processed Bulletin No. 117 (Entomology), and deals with Narcissus Bulb Fly and its control in British Columbia.

It is written by our local entomologist, Harry Andison, who has given the subject considerable study for many years. To those who have been preaching the gospel of Narcissus fly control it is a pleasure to know this publication is now available to the home gardener.

Nothing new is advocated in the way of controls, but the excellent photos of the fly and grub, coupled with the brief description of the life cycle, will help gardeners to identify the pest and take action at the correct time.

Gardeners and small commercial flower growers still ignore this pest, figuring that it is cheaper to buy new bulbs, than taking the trouble to destroy the grubs in the old ones. But every grub which escapes means another fly and 40 more eggs, and that can soon add up to the ruin of the bulb industry on lower Vancouver Island.

Control for small plantings is simple and consists of spreading refined naphthalene flakes between the plants at 10 to 15-day intervals from May 1.

Since the time for action is right now, every grower of Narcissus, whether it be 12 bulbs or 12 acres of bulbs, should obtain this bulletin from the Department of Agriculture, Parliament Buildings, Victoria, and add it to his library.

Wants Auxiliary Airport Facilities

Burgess Gadsden, Victoria representative on the Aviation Council, urged civic affairs group of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce to press for auxiliary airport facilities nearer to the city than Pat Bay.

"We should be looking to the future," he said. "Other cities are laying out flat-roofed buildings which will be used as landing grounds for helicopters. I am sorry the new Post Office building is not so equipped."

He also stressed the need of a landing strip for light airplanes near the city.

Sinatra's Latest Role Is Practically Autobiography

By ERSKINE JOHNSON

HOLLYWOOD, (NEA) — Exclusively Yours: It's top secret, but the "Meet Danny Wilson" script that is being prepared at U.I. for Frank Sinatra is practically his autobiography. There's a role in it that Ava Gardner can play... Ethel Barrymore's memoirs are almost completed but she's saying No to publishing offers. The stinging manuscript, I hear, will be earmarked: "For posthumous publication."

George Pittman clipped the following movie ad from a Pasadena, Calif., newspaper:

"Gaylord Hauser suggests breathing exercises during a dull movie short. Come in and build up your health during our dull shorts. Yogurt sold at the candy counter."

Clark Gable is asking M-G-M to snag Celeste Holm for his co-star in "Lone Star." John Wayne, meanwhile, couldn't swing his commitments to join Gable in the same film... Despite talk of a rift, Franchot Tone and Barbara Payton have already set the wedding date. They'll also co-star in Steve Fisher's "Goodbye to Katie" right after the honeymoon... M-G-M doesn't know it yet, but Mario Lanza will nix a role he's been assigned in "The Big Cast." Figures it's only a walk-on—and he's so right.

SOME RACE
Happy Chandler is in the race for the $65,000-a-year movie public relations post once held by Byron Price... Ethel LaVane and Ferde Grofe, who collaborated on "Atlantic Crossing," insist there's no romance in their lives. They're writing a new composition, "World's Fair"... An average of two atom bomb stories is passing daily over the desk of Producer Aubrey Schenck, but he says his successful "Target Unknown" will be his last war film for a long time.

Lost-And-Found Dept. Seeks Answers To Movieland Items

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, (AP) — Seated one day at the typewriter, I was wondering what happened to various items on the Hollywood scene.

So today I am running a lost-and-found department. All of these items seem to me lost, and if anyone can find them, let me know.

Whatever happened to Warner's plans to film the life of Will Rogers, with Will Jr. starring?... Paramount's announcement that it would make the life of Billy Rose?... 20th-Fox's plan for a picture on Wendell Wilkie's "One World"?

Whatever happened to Turhan Bey?... Butch Jenkins... Anita Page?... the other Pickens and Boswell Sisters besides Jane and Connie?... Simone Simone?... Orson Welles?

Whatever happened to the proposals for a Hollywood film festival, along the lines of those held abroad?... For an all-industry conference here to discuss current problems?

Warners To Sell Vast Film Empire

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (UP)—Harry W. Warner disclosed today that he and his brothers are selling their interest in the motion picture empire they founded.

Warner, vacationing here, said he was considering "several offers" for the 24 per cent of the outstanding stock of Warner Brothers Pictures Inc. held by himself and his brothers, Jack and Albert.

Warner said that Louis R. Lurie, San Francisco financier and realtor, had made an offer "in the neighborhood of $25,000,000" but added that "if any one came along and made a better offer, it would be seriously considered."

Four Plays In 'Honor Performance' Will End Drama Festival Tonight

Announcing his choice of plays to be presented in tonight's honor performance, Gordon Davis concluded his adjudications in the fourth annual Victoria Drama Festival, Friday night.

The plays which will be seen tonight are "Family Album," presented by the Victoria Theatre Guild and directed by Audrey St.D. Johnson; "The Rivals," presented by the Island Vagabonds, directed by Mrs. Edith Gibson; "Sad About Europe," presented by the Cowichan Little Theatre Guild, directed by Pat Brownsey, and, by special invitation Portland Civic Theatre's production of "The Lady of Larkspur Lotion," directed by Mrs. James Cameron.

Intermission music will be provided by Muriel and Vivian Trimble with duo piano numbers. Mr. Davis prefaced his adjudication with a welcome to the Portland Civic Theatre. Mr. Davis was at one time, for two years, director of this organization. He praised highly, the work of the two Portland teams.

"The Lady of Larkspur Lotion," he described as "a beautiful interpreted fragment. The author, Tennessee Williams, is a new voice in the theatre," said Mr. Davis. "His plays demand direction and acting of the sensitive type seen here."

He paid special compliments to Margaret Barney for her splendid portrayal of the unsympathetic lodging-house keeper in this poignant sketch of human degradation. The scene from the Smokey Mountain, folktale play, "Dark of the Moon," was a faithful and sincere reproduction of an old-fashioned dramatic climax and Mr. Davis described it as a splendid example of ensemble playing with wonderful rhythm and crescendos. It had been a thrilling experience, Mr. Davis concluded.

"THE INVISIBLE DUKE"
By P. Bladen-Smith
Presented by Lantville Players
The Duke... J. W. Peterson
The Astrologer... E. Herman
Nello... R. Chastaway
Dikko... N. Chastaway
Francisco... Thompson
Smilia... Thoma Sugar
Director, P. S. Dye

When he read this play, said the adjudicator, he did not envy the director's job. However, he had found it very completely done.

It was a fantastic farce and the actors had enjoyed it. He particularly praised the colorful costumes.

tunes and said the properties were apt and well constructed. Mr. Davis considered the pace good and the stage business very ingenious. The actors had all sustained their roles well and had played with zest and a sense of fun that was quite delightful.

"BLITHE SPIRIT" (Act II, Scene 1)
By Noel Coward
Presented by Alberni Valley Players
Ruth Condon... Olga McLean
Charles Condon... Tom Rennie
Edith... Jeanne Power
Director, Peter Powell

This scene from the delightful ghost comedy pleased the adjudicator immensely. It had had the true comedy pace and clarity, he remarked. There was excellent interplay between husband and wife. He had particularly enjoyed Tom Rennie's subtle pointing of comedy lines and his sense of timing.

Make-up and costume for the ghost-wife, Elvira, were good. However, she lacked the ethereal floating quality necessary for this part, Mr. Davis considered.

The adjudicator regretted that, owing to a festival ruling which sets the maximum running time for a play at 45 minutes, two plays had had to be disqualified for exceeding that limit. These were "The Invisible Duke" and St. Luke's Players' production of "Harlequinade."

Pianists Patricia Shakespeare and George Essihos provided the intermission music.

Festival Under Way Monday

With the arrival in town tomorrow of most of the adjudicators, the second annual Greater Victoria Musical Festival draws a deep breath and prepares to get under way.

Four halls will be necessary to accommodate classes this year. As has been the custom previously, piano sessions will take place in First Baptist Church, junior vocal and speech arts in the Metropolitan United Church school room, senior vocal and choral classes in First United Church and folk dancing, instrumental and bagpipe classes in the Canadian Legion Hall.

The evening sessions commence at 8 o'clock and season ticket holders are admitted without extra charge.

On the OUTDOOR FRONT

With ROY THORSEN

Directors of the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association don't like having a "nest egg"—in the form of $2,100 in bonds—tucked away just out of their reach, even in times of emergency. The result is that an extraordinary meeting of the association will be called within one month to decide once and for all if the bonds can be made available to the directors.

Minutes of general and directors' meetings back to '41 are to be perused to see if there actually is a motion forbidding use of the bonds without the approval of an extraordinary meeting. If there is, the special meeting will be asked to amend it. "It is not our intention to squander the money if the bonds are made available, and every effort will be made to replace money used," said President Stan Ball.

Fish-Game Variety Program

Main attraction on tomorrow's sportsmen's menu is the all-day variety program at the Goldstream flats by the Victoria Fish and Game Protective Association. Starts at 10 and includes fly and bait-casting competitions, dog trials and clay-pigeon shooting. Other attraction is the open shoot to be held at the Victoria Gun Club grounds. It starts at 1. Refreshments for the public will be available at both sites. North Saanich Rod and Gun Club has postponed its annual shoot carded for tomorrow on the Sidney grounds to July 1 so as not to interfere with the Victoria shows.

Good fishing is still the order in McKenzie Bay, off Stone House and down to Goldstream. Bluebacks and jacks are the main offering. They like blue-white, red-white, green-white bucktails during certain hours of the day. Catch of 16 blues by Mr. and Mrs. George Beale, 2706 Victor Street, before noon yesterday morning is a sample of what's offered. Trout fishing on the island is almost at its best peak now with "fair" to "good" results being scored in most sectors.

From All Over The Island

Following is the game department's reports on lake and river fishing:

CLEVELAND HAS FUTURE GREAT IN SAM JONES

San Diego Negro Rated Coming Star

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—This fellow Sam Jones, who munches toothpicks while his fast ball breezes by Pacific Coast League batters, may develop into the hottest major league prospect since skinny Ted Williams left San Diego to join the Boston Red Sox.

Veteran baseball men tell you Jones can't miss going up to the majors next year. And, assuming he does, he could be the one to assure Cleveland of winning another American League pennant.

Jones, a San Diego negro pitcher, is 25 years old and carries 200 pounds on a 6-foot 4-inch frame. His strong right arm has struck out 75 men while fashioning a 5-2 record this season. The strike-out total, compiled over 63 innings, figures to about 1.2 men whiffing at his fast ball per inning.

BELOW PAR

He was a little under par last night, fanning 9 men as he four-hit San Diego to a 4 to 0 victory over Hollywood. The shut-out avenged a blanking of a week ago, when Jones lost a 1 to 0 ball game to Oakland after doling out only five hits. His opponent that day, Jay Ragini, was in the mood to permit just one safety.

While Jones chewed his toothpick, Los Angeles defeated Portland, 3 to 2. Sacramento whipped San Francisco, 7 to 5, and Seattle got by Oakland, 5 to 4.

Hint Approval Of Soviet Olympic Participation

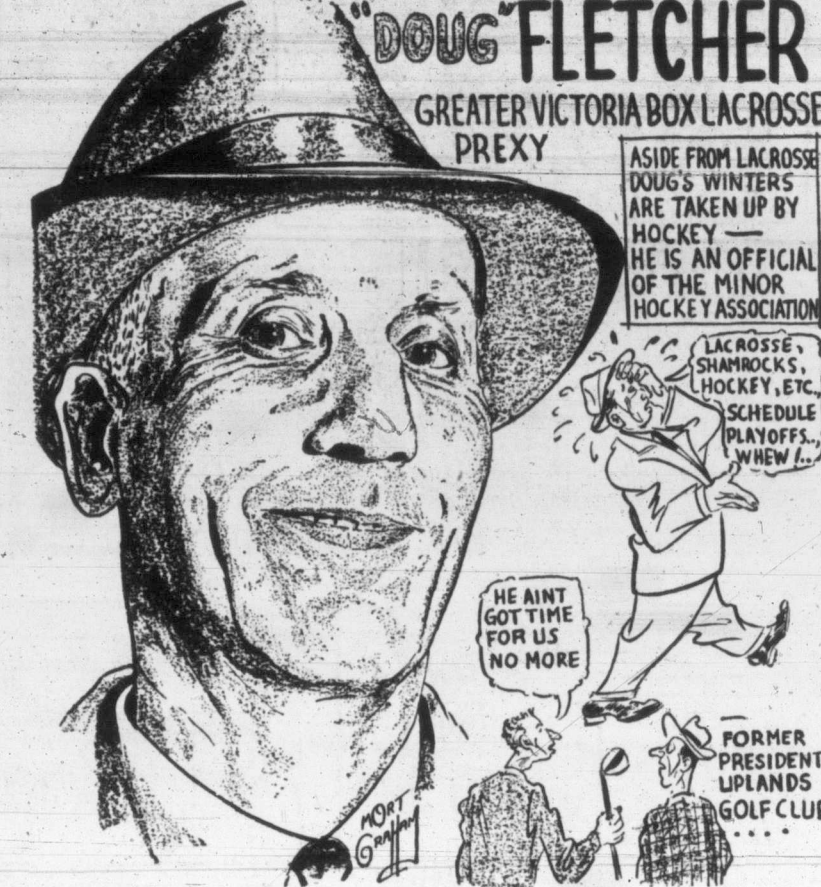

VIENNA (AP)—A Russian delegation met with International Olympic officials Friday for the first time since the days of the Czars.

The Russian party was headed by Konstantin Andrianov, president of the new Soviet Olympic Committee.

There was no comment on the meeting. It was certain, however, that the Soviets had to join the Olympic family was discussed.

The six-man executive commission which met with the Russians must recommend to the full International Olympic Committee whether to accept, reject or defer action on the application.

Statements issued by Olympic spokesmen before the meeting indicated it would be approved.

A Man Behind Many Scenes

One of the busiest individuals in Victoria's sports circle is dapper Doug Fletcher. In summer, he frets about affairs of the Greater Victoria Box Lacrosse Association, of which he is president, and in the winter he engrosses himself with matters concerning Victoria's Minor Hockey Association. Doug's worrying seems unnecessary, for everything he has a hand in seems to run so smoothly. If he took off his hat, you would see the best pate-tan this side of Florida.

'WASN'T FIRED; I QUIT'

Baseball Official Was Unhappy With 'Happy'

CINCINNATI, O. (UP)—Walter Mulbry said today he was not fired as secretary-treasurer of baseball by Commissioner A. B. "Happy" Chandler, but quit because he had "taken all the bickering I could stomach."

Mulbry also branded Chandler "an egomaniac who shows by his action that he is a little man."

Mulbry said he notified the club owners that he was through but was asked to stay for 24 hours "so something could be worked out." This happened a few hours before Chandler announced on April 27 the executive committee had accepted his resignation.

Mulbry said that in asking his resignation he approved, he remarked: "I've had all of this I can stomach. I'm getting out right now. That's when I walked out, not when Chandler dictated that statement to the papers."

When contracted at his home in Versailles, Ky., Chandler said he had "no comment" to make on Mulbry's statements, which he hadn't seen and didn't want to hear.

George Kinch Tosses One-Hitter

Navy blanked Esquimalt Athletic Association 12 to 0, and Western Heat ran roughshod over Tillamook 16 to 6 in two senior "B" softball fixtures played despite bad weather Friday night.

George Kinch threw the navy team to victory, allowing only one hit during the game, and striking out 12 batters.

A senior "A" softball game slated for Central Park between Bluebird-Cabs and B.C. Forest Products was called off because of wet grounds.

Yugoslavia Leads

ZAGREB, Yugoslavia (AP)—Yugoslavia took the lead Friday in the first round of Davis Cup play against West Germany.

Strong-armed Milo Brancovic defeated West Germany's Ernst Bucholz in the initial round of the European zone competition 4-6, 5-7, 6-2, 6-2, 6-4.

Rain washed out the second singles match between Germany's, Gottfried Von Cramm and Drago Mitic.

Yanks Lead Thanks To Stengel, Lopat

Eddie Lopat, the New York Yankees' "hot weather pitcher" is very warm for May. With a 4 to 0 record, the chunky southpaw is well on the way to his first 20-win season.

He used to think he couldn't win until the June sun hit 90; professor Casey Stengel gave him a lesson in psychology.

"Casey proved it was all in my mind," said Lopat. "Just a lot of bunk."

Thanks to Lopat's runaway start, the Yanks have edged into first place earlier than usual. Last year it took them until May 16.

He had a 20-inning scoreless string going when St. Louis got to him for a run in the first inning last night.

Jackie Jensen's fine defensive play helped Eddie over the rough spots en route to an 8 to 1 win that sent the Yanks into first place.

Alex Kellner, who has won two of Philadelphia's three victories, knocked Cleveland into third place with a six-hit job, 3 to 1.

Chico Carrasquel's double in the 11th inning gave Chicago a 6 to 5 edge over Washington, knocking the Senators out of the American League lead.

Hal Newhouser finally got into the win column as Detroit joined the Boston Red Sox 8 to 4.

Meanwhile, the Boston Braves threw on their home stand. With Vern Bickford winning his fourth on a five-hitter, the Braves slipped back into first place in the National, downing Chicago, 9 to 3.

ONE-HIT JOB

Sal Maglie threw a one-hitter at Pittsburgh, 5 to 1, as the New York Giants backed him up with homers by Hank Thompson, Bobby Thomson, Monte Irvin and Spider Jorgensen. There was no suspense to Maglie's one-hitter for the hit was a triple by lead-off man Pete Castiglione in the first.

Letty tried to reach the children. They must be got off the stage at all costs. "Get them off, Amelia!" she called. "Help me to get them into the street!" "Lucy! Lucy and John!"—that was a father's voice; the parents were coming up on the stage. The woman in the curls seized Letty by the wrist and dragged her forward. She looked her up and down, swaying back and forth as she did so, then turned to the audience and began, "Ladies and gentlemen, as the leading lady of Bailey's Comedies, I want you to meet..." For herself Letty was not afraid. She must keep her head for all of them. "The curtain!" she shouted over the other voice. "The curtain!" Nobody seemed to hear. Nobody paid any attention. The screaming of the children grew.

Tenders Govern Plans For School

Department of Education will provide funds for construction of Lansdowne Junior High School if tenders from contractors, due late in May, come within the $600,000-plus budget for the school, Maj. R. H. Green, chairman of Greater Victoria School Board, said today. "The department has approved the plans, but if tenders exceed the budget the project will have to wait," he said. The school board last night studied letters from the department outlining its building curtailment program to conserve essential materials. Construction of Cadboro Bay and Strawberry Vale Elementary Schools, and additions to Esquimalt High School, will not be affected by the department's policy.

U.S. Radio Unheaval May Follow Big Deal

NEW YORK (CP)—The New York Times today said the Columbia Broadcasting System is reported considering purchase of the American Broadcasting Corporation at a price of $28,000,000. Officials of both companies declined comment. The story said a major upheaval in the radio industry appears imminent. The Times said CBS has but its rates, declaring that the reductions stem from loss of radio listeners to television.

and to her horror, a band of miners, equally drunk, was now joining the chorus women on the stage.

One of them looked up at the woman in the curls. "Leave her go, Sadie! A pretty little bit like that needs a man's touch!" He wrenched the woman's hand away from Letty and seized it himself. Letty jerked herself back from him. And suddenly, as she did so, the struggle was broken and the man sent reeling to the floor.

It was Jervis. Jervis—on the stage—taking off his coat as the man's friends came threateningly down on him.

She caught only a glimpse of him; a never-to-be-forgotten glimpse. She saw his hard, set face... a sharp lunge of his long, wiry arm... a spluttering and coughing as the men closed in on him. Twining was there, too. And Trevyan Langley. And Roper. And still the woman in the brown curls was shrieking and yelling above the din.

The whole theatre, it seemed, was now in utter chaos. The men from the audience... the miners... were taking sides and rolling and fighting in a frenzy, until it all seemed past believing.

A terrified child clung screaming to Letty's dress. She tried her best to shield it, pressing the shaking little figure tightly against her body, thrusting an arm forward to ward off any blows. And even as she did this she saw, to her horror, a glimpse of something that made her heart stand still.

At the corner of the stage a swarthy man—a man with a scar on his face—had pulled out his gun and was taking aim with it. He was half in shadow. Nobody out in front could see him. Nobody else appeared to see him either. For the fraction of a second Letty glanced away and saw where he was aiming... at a tall, broad-shouldered man across the stage. She opened her mouth but could not shout. Then suddenly she could shout. "Stop him! Stop him!" she screamed, pointing her finger at the corner of the stage. Nobody heard her.

The shot cracked across the shouting like a whip. A woman screamed. It was a horrible scream. It was a long, stretched-out weakening scream of pain. And as Letty looked, or tried to look, across the milling men and women in front of her, the lights went out.

She felt sick herself, now, but she was the only protector of the child that still clung, without turning, rigid with fear, to her skirts. And in the darkness the shouting of the crowd fell into a frozen silence before that single scream had spent itself.

A flicker of gaslight came again. Somebody had lit a lamp. Other lanterns were coming onto the stage. Of that she was only instinctively aware. A knot of people was bending over a prostrate figure—the woman in the curls. Only a white hand, and a part of the hair and forehead were visible from where Letty stood. Standing nearer to her, looking with incredulity at his hand, was Jervis Braid—and in that hand was a still-smoking revolver.

Letty plucked the frightened child up into her arms and started to go forwards. But even as she did so, one of the police constables who had seen the gun, called a fellow constable, seized the revolver and placed the man who held it under arrest. "He didn't do it!"—she looked around her frantically. "It was another man... a man with a scar..." The constable nearer to her was gruff and to the point. "How could you see it if it was dark? This man was carrying the gun..." "Please! Please listen to me." (To be continued)

DISH OF SLAW, ANCIENT TRICK NABBED THUG

NEW YORK (AP)—Mrs. Anne Heideker, Bronx delicatessen proprietor, had to turn over her cash receipts Friday night to an armed robber.

As the thief was leaving, however, Mrs. Heideker yelled "Look!"

The gunman halted and turned around. The woman heaved a 15-pound tray of cole slaw in his face.

Choking out "Help!" the bandit fled in a flurry of cabbage shreds. "I couldn't help it," Mrs. Heideker later told police. "I just got mad."

'Buffalo' Convention

PORT ALBERT—1951 convention of Royal Antediluvian Order of Buffalo lodges of British Columbia is being held here today and tomorrow.

STRUCTURE OF CANADIAN ARMY

How Troops Are Divided Into Units

OTTAWA (CP)—This is to guide those who don't know the difference between a platoon and a brigade and who may be a bit confused now that Canada is going to have the equivalent of a full division under arms.

Some thumbnail descriptions of smaller army segments: Division—About 18,000 men divided into three infantry brigades plus supporting units of artillery, engineers, signals, medicals, ordnance and other arms. It is commanded by a major-general.

Brigade—A group of three infantry battalions, each of about 900 men. It is commanded by a brigadier.

Brigade Group—When it appears that a brigade may have to fight on its own, units which normally would be under divisional command are added to the brigade so it can operate alone. This enlarged brigade is called a brigade group.

(Canada now has two brigade groups and is going to recruit a third. The fact they are all brigade groups means they are not to be banded together into a division. They are to be kept separate for separate jobs, the regular force airborne brigade group or mobile striking force for home defence, the (Special Force) 25th Brigade Group for Korea, the new 27th Brigade Group primarily for Europe.)

Battalion—The infantry unit which is the real fighting unit of any army. It has about 900 men and is commanded by a lieutenant-colonel. It is broken down into five companies, each split into platoons which are divided into sections.

Regiment—In the infantry, a regiment is the parent unit which recruits battalions to fight—thus the 1st Battalion of the Loyal Edmonton Regiment.

Armored and artillery units bear the name regiment into action.

Other Units: Armor, artillery, engineers, signals, each has its own designations. Thus a tank regiment is broken down into squadrons, squadrons into troops. Artillery regiments are broken down into batteries and batteries into troops.

Blackstock Hits Company Parking

City Council should demand that large companies make some provision for parking employees' cars which at present are lining the city streets, Chief John Blackstock told a council's transportation committee. The chief referred particularly to the situation on Garbally Road, near the B.C. Electric Co. bus barn.

NEWS OF CITY CHURCHES

Victoria West Anglicans Celebrate 60th Anniversary Of Congregation

Three hundred present and former parishioners of St. Saviour's Church, Victoria West, renewed acquaintances and exchanged reminiscences at a most successful "Birthday Party" held Wednesday evening in the parish hall on the occasion of the 60th anniversary of the founding of the church.
Some of the guests had been present at the dedication of the pioneer church in 1891.
A three-tiered birthday cake was cut by three members of the parish who have been associated with the church continually since its inception, Mrs. Charles F. Banfield, Miss Melissa M. Harper and Mrs. R. Carstairs.
Canon Eric Munn and the Rev. and Mrs. A. Hendy brought messages from the Cathedral Chapter and St. Paul's Naval and Garrison Church, respectively, and Rev. S. V. H. Redman of Victoria West represented United Church congregations in the city.
Presentations were made to the vicar, Rev. Douglas Kendall; A. E. Barnesley, vicar's warden, and Mr. A. Anderson, people's warden, for their untiring efforts on behalf of the parish.
Sunday will terminate "Diamond Jubilee" Week, and two former incumbents will take the services: Venerable Archdeacon Robert Connell at 11 and the Rev. Eric Willis at 7.30.
Rev. Col. A. S. Lambert, O.B.E., national president of the War Amps of Canada, will occupy the pulpit of Fairfield United Church at tomorrow morning's service. A number of patients from the Veterans Hospital will attend.
The Chinese United Church Young People's Union have extended an open invitation to interested friends to attend the morning service tomorrow at the Chinese United Church. Sunday school superintendent Allan Jones of Centennial United Church will be the speaker, and Joan Bonfoy of Centennial Choir, the soloist.
Miss G. A. Ament, formerly superintendent of a large leper home in India and now representative of the Mission To Lepers for western Canada, will speak at an open meeting in the Y.W.C.A. on Thursday, May 10, at 3 p.m. Miss Ament will show pictures illustrating the work in the Leper Homes.

Vancouver Rabbi Will Speak Here
Rabbi David C. Kogen, rabbi of Beth Israel congregation, Vancouver, will speak at Temple Emmanuel, corner of Blanshard and Pandora, Monday night at 7.30. The public is invited to attend.

WEEKLY SERMON

Division Of Israel Object Lesson Today

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.
The famous saying, "United we stand; divided we fall," never had more forceful illustration than in the history of the Jewish people.
Shortly after the time of David and Solomon, the nation was divided by the successful revolt of 10 tribes led by Jeroboam. Two tribes, remaining loyal to Rehoboam, Solomon's son, comprised the Southern Kingdom, or Kingdom of Judah, and were hostile toward the newly-formed Northern Kingdom.
In a little over 200 years the Northern Kingdom fell under the armies of Assyria, never to be re-established; and 136 years later, in 586 B.C., the Southern Kingdom fell, and its people were carried off in exile to Babylon. From that exile, of course, there was the glorious return and re-establishment of the Jews in their homeland, described in the Books of Ezra and Nehemiah. From that exile, too, there was a great recovery in Babylon itself.
But the bitterness of that exile, and of the events that caused it, is set forth in the story of the invasion, and in the tragic 137th Psalm. That period of Jewish history, approximating in years the entire period of American history, surely constitutes a warning against division and internal strife.
Many chapters of the Old Testament, read individually and casually, must involve considerable confusion to a reader, unless the whole story, and some broad framework of events and movements is borne in mind. It may help, if I suggest a brief outline of what occurred.
Following the return of the Jews from Egypt, the people were ruled by Judges, one of the greatest of whom was the woman, Deborah. The account of that period is in the Books of Joshua and Judges.
Then came the great leader, Samuel, grown from the little boy in the temple, who combined in himself the functions of prophet, priest, and king. But the people wanted a king, in reality, and not in name only, and so they complained to Samuel.
As a result, Saul became their leader. But his reign ended with a suicide, in a disastrous battle that marked a low ebb in Israel's defeat. Then came David, a man of war and vigor, despite the tradition of the shepherd-boy and the harp-playing, Psalm-writing King. He fought down his enemies, and made the kingdom strong.
Solomon "in all his glory" extended its bounds, and made it stronger still. But much of that glory was built upon exploitation and oppression, and on Solomon's death the people cried out for an alleviation of their burdens.
It will be remembered that Rehoboam, Solomon's son, asked advice from the older men, who advised him to yield, but followed the advice of the younger men, who advised him to show them who was the master. It was then that Jeroboam came up from Egypt, where he had escaped after leading an unsuccessful rebellion. Now he succeeded, and the division began, with the movement toward doom that I have cited above.
"History repeats itself," and what is happening in Palestine today recalls much that happened long ago, giving a contemporary aspect to the interesting and inspiring story of Nehemiah.

By ART STOTT

When Les Fox was a young reporter on this newspaper, he had the instincts of a collector. His desk was a museum curator's nightmare. Nothing was wasted by Les. Everything was stored for future use. No matter how fully he'd covered an assignment, he had a habit of preserving his notes and source material. They grew into monumental piles and spread out in towering ramparts around his typewriter.

Stott

heavily, small sections of a wall of material would be dislodged, would break off, as the soft banks of rivers sometimes fall through erosion, slipping into the stream. Fox was a collector. We periodically, when he swung the carriage of his machine too figured he was a pack rat. We didn't have a refined appreciation of the spirit which moved him.

PERIODICALLY the boss of the city desk would drift over to Les's corner with the suggestion: "You'd better clean up, hadn't you, Buck? This junk's going to fall forward and crush you."

Fox fought the suggestion. Nothing should be disturbed. He needed the accumulation. It was his file. Might want it for a follow-up story sometime. So nothing was done in his presence.

When he went out, though, a couple of us would move in, put his typewriter on another table and gently tip the Fox desk forward. There was something satisfying in creating the avalanche—a mean sort of pleasure, like a bully gets busting a kid's sand castle. We'd lose the occasional pair of scissors in the litter, maybe a paste pot, and few pencils, but the clean-up was worth it.

SOMEHOW TODAY I couldn't help wishing I could walk out and a couple of the boys would move into my office, tilt the desk forward and empty the drawers. The only difference between Fox's collection and mine is that his was assembled more rapidly.

You wonder, when you're going through your stuff during a moving bee, why you save things. You look through your desk drawers. Maybe you find galley proofs of a story you did on Stuart Henderson. It was too long when it had been set and you had to cut it down to fit the space. So you saved the galley proofs—might want them some day for elaboration in an article.

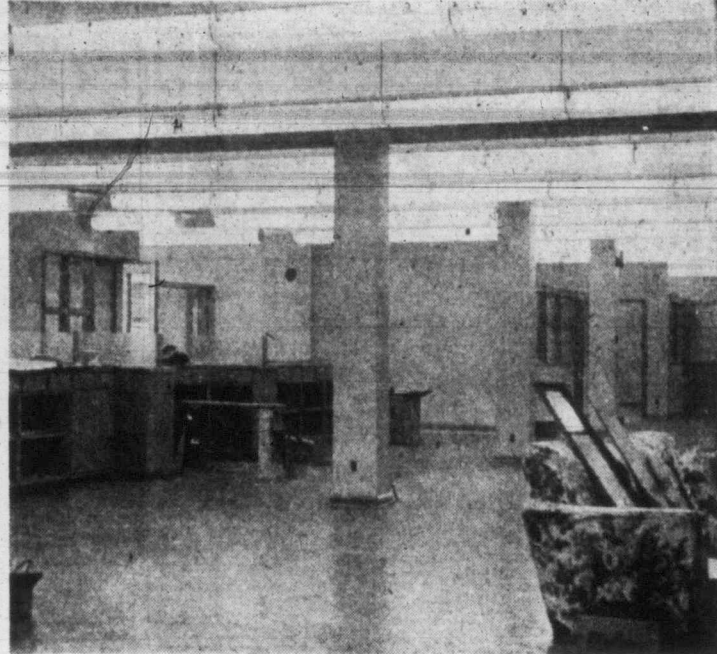

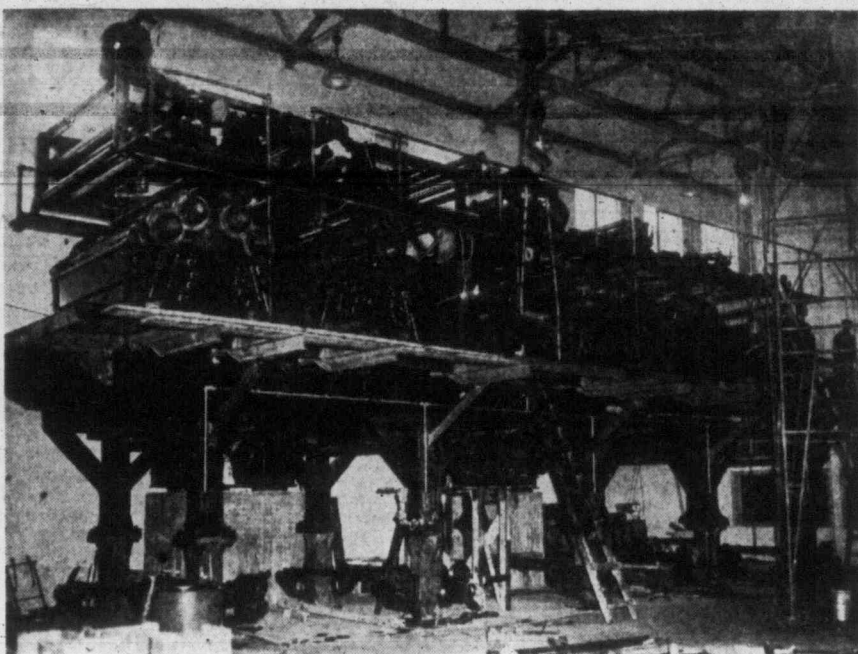

YOU PICK UP a clipping. It's the printed thoughts of a father gazing at his small sleeping son. The boy had been punished and sent to bed and the father is thinking, as he looks at the little fellow, why he should have punished him. It's a fine piece of paternal philosophy running through honest emotion. It was scissored from a magazine and filed away to remind a guy how he should handle sentiment in his writing. But why save it?

You unfold an old calendar—one of those that came out during the war and made the Petty and Varga pictures look modest. It's a colored photograph of a brunette—nice eyes. You've never dared to hang it in your office and you don't want to take it with you. So you give it to the boys in the stereo room. They have quite an art collection.

YOU MAKE THE mistake of looking into old letters. A batch of them contains correspondence with Bob Pearce when Bob was the greatest oarsman in the world and wanted to stage a match race at Vancouver's exhibition. You remember your big ideas at the time, the plans you made—to become a promoter, only the promotion fell through. And you recall Bob didn't bother to phone when he was out here a few weeks ago. Why keep the souvenirs?

You turn up a few clippings of pieces you wrote and of which you were proud. You wonder if your stuff will catch the same freshness, have the same ring again. You can get a little morbid on that, if you can't switch to the idiom of the newspaper: That was yesterday; what's coming up tomorrow?

After half an hour on a single drawer, you take yourself in hand. Look, fella, you say, all this accumulation is just like the junk in a kid's pocket. It's only precious to one person. Turn it out. You're grown up. Remember what you used to do to Les Fox's desk? Okay. What's holding you back?

Victoria Daily Times Takes Over Newest And Most Modern Newspaper Plant On Pacific Coast

Largest electrical installation of its kind on island at new plant, where this newspaper will publish starting Monday, is inspected by Frank Mack, mechanical superintendent, left, and Ed Balma, who was in charge of plant wiring.

New five-unit Goss press in $1,000,000 plant near Fountain Circle dwarfs men preparing it for first run. Press is capable of running off 40,000 40-page papers an hour and is large enough to print an 80-page paper at slower speed. Detailed work of assembling big printing machine has been directed over past six to seven weeks by Seattle firm of J. M. Gauntlett and Co. Two Times presses will be installed also in new plant as high-speed color printing unit.

Spacious offices of ultra-modern printing plant are shown in this picture of business quarters to be occupied jointly by Times and Colonist. From editorial standpoint, papers will continue operation as rivals. Separate newsrooms are found on second floor, Times on south side and morning paper on north. Downtown business offices will be maintained.

Scottish Will Raise Company For Overseas

For the third time in its 37-year history, colors of the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's) will be represented in a Canadian Army volunteer force to help quell world troubles.

The Scottish will have one company in a Canadian highland battalion to form a part of the 27th Infantry Brigade to join Gen. Eisenhower's integrated European force, Lt. Col. Walter Mosedale, O.C. of the Scottish reserve battalion, said today on his return from a G.O.C.'s conference in Vancouver. Companies of famous regiments involved will wear their unit flashes and badges.

Recruiting booths have been set up in Bay Street Armouries and a recruiting drive will get underway starting Monday morning. The armory is the recruiting centre for the whole island.

In addition to Scottish recruiting, men are also wanted for artillery, signals, army service corps, medical corps, ordnance, electrical and mechanical engineers, provost, intelligence and postal.

"We will complete recruiting for one company first and then start on the next. The first unit will be established at Gordon Head camp and will then go to Camp Valcartier, brigade concentration point," said Colonel Mosedale.

He declared the second company would then be formed and held here for reinforcement or replacement duties.

Recruits will be accepted between the ages of 17 up to 40 (45 for tradesmen). They will be enlisted on a willing-to-serve-anywhere basis for 3 years. Army headquarters says that every effort will be made to allocate volunteers for corps and units of their choice.

The Seaforth Highlanders of Vancouver will also recruit two companies. The B.C. Dragoons from Kelowna, Vernon and Penticton will recruit troops to take its place beside the King's Own Calgarys during squadron training with the Lord Strathcona's Horse, Vancouver's B.C. Regiment, of armoured corps, is to provide the third troop from Western Command for intensive armour training at Calgary.

L. A. Campbell has been elected president of Old Age Pensioners' Organization to replace William Partridge, who resigned because of ill health.

Esquimalt's May Parade Ignores Weather Threat

Armed forces marching units and bands made a brave show in Esquimalt this morning despite threatening skies as the municipality's annual May celebration swung into its second and closing day.

Following the parade through the business section, Rear Admiral W. B. Creery, Flag Officer Pacific Coast, took the salute opposite the municipal hall.

Old-time war veterans honored in a special ceremony included Ernest Goldsmith, 86, of 522 Admirals Road; Sam Smith, 78, 1233 Juno Street; Sam Doncaster, 74, 1235 Dominion Road, and George Buckingham, 71, 1238 Esquimalt Road.

SPECIAL GUEST

A special guest of Reeve A. I. Thomas for the ceremonies was William Hadley, who joined the Royal Navy in 1883 as a boy of nine, and who inducted the reeve into the R.C.N. in 1916.

The baby show was held at the Legion Hall at 1 with Surgeon Lt.-Cmdr. J. W. Rogers as judge, and the annual soap box derby started on Macaulay Street hill at 2.30.

Festivities will close tonight with a carnival at 7.30 at the municipal hall, and dancing in the hall from 9 to 12.

The celebration was marred somewhat by the cancellation of children's sports at Bullen Park Friday because of poor weather, and a soap box "tryout" Friday night when a machine driven by Herbert Belfie, 14, of 2635 Victor Street, struck 10-year-old

Fraud Inquiry By Commission Starts Monday

A full-scale investigation into an alleged swindling ring in Victoria is scheduled for 2.30 Monday afternoon when the Police Commission will meet to hear four Victoria and Sooke residents give information which they hope may aid in the recovery of their $85,000 they claim they lost to fraud artists.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce executive committee, meanwhile, strongly endorsed the investigation ordered by Mayor Percy George. The committee also requested Police Chief John Blackstock to seek the full co-operation of Attorney-General Gordon Wismer.

PROBE 'NECESSARY'

"We feel that this investigation is necessary in view of the recent investigation and publicity given this particular case, and also hope the moneys will be recovered and returned to their rightful owners," the statement from the chamber read.

Monday's investigation may bring clues to the whereabouts of persons who are believed to have defrauded scores of elderly persons in Victoria and elsewhere in B.C. of more than $200,000, authorities said.

The four to appear are W. A. Scott, Victoria; Robert M. Betts of Happy Valley Road, Sooke; Mrs. Elizabeth Page, 502-A Gorge Road East, Victoria, and Mrs. Edith Bourne, 806 Cook, Victoria. The last three claim they lost a total of $85,000.

Meanwhile, Mayor George has instructed the police department to concentrate on the investigation.

The fraud ring is said to have operated here and elsewhere in B.C. for several years. Mr. Betts in a letter to the mayor said his late father and brother and himself were victimized of about $60,000. Mrs. Page, 73, reported two swindlers robbed her of $9,000. Mrs. Bourne said she had lost $16,000.

Public To Get Invitation To Newspaper 'Open House'

Tours Through Building When Staff Is Settled

As soon as the Victoria Daily Times settles down in its new publishing house at the Fountain Circle—in a month or so—the public will be given an opportunity to inspect the Pacific Coast's newest and most modern newspaper plant.

Conducted tours of the $1,000,000 building, to be occupied jointly by the Times and the Colonist, are planned.

allow color printing.

The new plant sets a first for Vancouver Island in electrical installation.

LARGE POWER UNIT

It has the largest inside power installation of its kind on the Island. Electrical energy is brought into the plant at 13,200 volts which is broken down to 220 volts for lighting and ordinary power, and to 440 volts for the presses. Amperage is built up from 50 to 2,000.

The electrical job, started last July and just completed, was carried out by H. D. Mainwaring and Co.

In charge of the job was Ed. Balma, foreman foreman for the electrical company.

The plant construction was carried out by Luney Brothers and Hamilton. It has taken over a year.

Special flooring has been used in the mechanical departments where rubber-wheeled dollies will carry the heavy page forms and type. The floor is made of hard wood blocks set in mastic in diagonal pattern.

In the rest of the building are colorful tile floors.

Interior finish is in rough and smooth plaster, and yellow cedar and birch panelling.

Architects for the ultra modern plant were Birley, Wade and Stockhill. Nearly 60 drawings were required in the planning of the complex building.

The moving of the 168 tons of equipment from the Times and Colonist is being carried out by Dowell's Cartage and Storage and Heaney's Cartage and Storage.

Crews of longshoremen are being employed in the removal of machines. Some pieces weigh as much as five tons.

The move is being carried out under the expert eye of Frank Mack, mechanical superintendent of Victoria Press Ltd., who was brought to Victoria some months ago from Calgary.

More Women Needed In Senate

OTTAWA (CP)—One of the Senate's two women members offered a main criticism of Canada's Upper Chamber this week—it doesn't have enough members of the fair sex.

Senator Iva Fallis, 67, a Conservative appointed to the 102-member house by Prime Minister Bennett in 1935, thought things would be better and criticism of the Senate reduced if it had more women and if it had more members in opposition.

Stepping into the long-drawn-out debate on Senate reform, she decried the fact that since the Privy Council ruled women eligible for Senate appointment some 20 years ago, only two have been appointed. The other is Senator Cairine Wilson, a Liberal, appointed to represent Ontario in 1930.

Present standing in the Senate is 79 Liberals, 11 Progressive Conservatives with 12 seats vacant.

Senator Fallis said this lopsided representation was one source of criticism of the upper house by the public who saw the Senate as a one-sided chamber and therefore of little use in the parliamentary system.

Church Donation—Mrs. H. A. Hinks was hostess recently to members of St. Matthew's Guild, Langford. Mrs. B. F. Bullen presided and members voted $50 to church hall. Members are giving refreshments for church supper Tuesday at 6:30 in the community hall. Tentative plans were made for summer garden party. Mrs. L. Horner read from "In the Steps of the Master." Miss P. Taylor presided at the tea table and Mesdames H. W. McKenzie and A. F. Bayles assisted the hostess.

A Charming Ontario Visitor

Holidaying in the city for the past few days with her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Rutan, St. Patrick Street, has been Miss Jane Rutan, Port Arthur, Ont. She has now left to spend a few weeks at Timberline Lodge, Mount Rainier, but will return here again before traveling back to her home.

Happy Valley—A registration tea will be held in Happy Valley School, Tuesday at 2:30 for mothers with their children who expect to attend school in September. Mothers will be introduced to the principal and teachers and children will be shown the school room. A clinic will be held in conjunction with the tea. Dr. C. Beattie and Miss D. ## Saying Farewell And Hello Makes A Day To Remember

By ELIZABETH FORBES

It's moving day, at the Times!

The boxes are all packed, desks are swept clean of papers, paste-pots and pencils, typewriters have been covered and pictures and calendars taken down off the walls.

A few hours ago we listened to the machinery slow down. The linotypes stopped pounding above our heads and the hum of the presses lessened to a murmur and then stopped.

It seemed very still!

All that remained was to walk out and lock the door!

Turn the key on the dirty old walls that have echoed to the voices of so many people, the dusty cobweb in the corner of our room that has become a familiar sight in the last few years, the piece of copy paper that photographer Strickland, in one of his lighter moments more than five years ago, balled and tossed to the top of the molding above the door.

The marble stairs, every step of which is hollowed and worn from the millions of footsteps that have climbed up and down the whole five flights.

The rickety elevator, on top of which I once descended, when I was young and foolish because I was dared.

The view from the newsroom of the Sooke Hills etched against the western sky and another view of the Olympic Mountains that we have watched in all their changing moods from the windows of the women's department.

Turn the key too on memories—some sad, some gay—and on the ghosts of times gone by that as the rooms were emptied became almost visible.

Turn the key—and say good-bye!

Once it was done we could smile again. And begin to think about our quarters in the modern building to which we were moving. We piled into cars, hugging the last pieces of copy that we'd pulled hurriedly from our typewriters as the movers took them away. We began thinking ahead to the stories we must finish this afternoon if you were to have an edition of the Times on Monday.

The mood changed in a minute from sadness to gaiety.

You could feel the excitement as we got out of the automobiles in front of the great brick and stone building, hurried up the stairs and into our new offices.

No black cobwebs, no grimy ball of copy paper on the molding.

But clean tiled floors, clean walls, clean windows—and for a view from our windows a chestnut tree that today is starred with candle-like blossoms.

Of course this new building has no personality as yet!

No memories and no ghosts!

That will come with time!

For the present, the staff of the Women's Department of the Victoria Daily Times wish to thank you for all the co-operation they have received in the past and to express a wish for the same co-operation in the future. We hope you will come to see us in our brand new building and in that way help us to make our office the same happy rendezvous it has always been.

Times Women's Dept. Before 'Big Move'

All this week, Miss Dawn Van Norman, Miss Florence Larinde, better known to her friends as "Penny Saver," and Miss Elizabeth Forbes have been packing notebooks and papers, pictures and files, in preparation for today's move to the new Fountain Circle plant. On Friday, photographer Irving Strickland caught them at a particular hectic moment when everything seemed to be "getting nowhere fast." Today, the scene is quite different—an empty picture board, an old calendar and a newspaper picture of a spray of apple blossoms pasted to the wall with transparent tape is all that is left. Everything else, including the three members of the Women's Department, has been moved to the new building.

Reunion With Family After Seven Years

Mrs. D. Trent and her sons, Anthony, 6, and Martin, aged 3, came from Coulsdon, Surrey, Eng., last week to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. Kennelly, Simcoe Street, whom she had not seen for nearly seven years. Her parents traveled to Vancouver to meet her. Also in the welcoming group when the young family arrived in that mainland city were an uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. John Kennelly, Vancouver; another uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. John Scott, Seattle, and many friends. Mrs. Trent will visit in Victoria until the end of August.

Aunt's Heirloom Cross Worn By This Morning's Bride, Lois Joyce Roycroft

An heirloom diamond cross belonging to her aunt was worn by Miss Lois Joyce Roycroft, daughter of Mrs. E. V. Colley, Dallas Road, and the late J. Y. Roycroft, when she became bride of Edward George Kraft, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Kraft, New Westminster, in St. Andrew's Cathedral this morning. Father W. B. Costello officiated.

The bride was given in marriage by her stepfather, E. V. Colley.

The wedding gown of white slipper satin featured a Queen Anne collar, key-hole neckline and lily point sleeves. A full skirt over panniers at the hips was fashioned with a drape effect which formed a peplum at the back. A trailing veil of nylon illusion net trimmed with Chantilly lace edging was arranged under an heirloom coronet of seed pearls and orange blossoms. The bride carried a cascade bouquet of Talisman roses and lily of the valley.

Bridesmaid, Miss Dorothy Marty, was gown in a salmon pink taffeta dress with matching bolero jacket, and matron of honor, Mrs. D. Robinson, wore ice-blue embroidered organza over taffeta. Both carried arm bouquets of pink sweet peas, blue iris, and lily of the valley.

Raymond Kraft, brother of the groom, was best man, and ushers were Robert Roycroft, brother of the bride, and Russell Kraft, brother of the groom.

At the reception held at the home of the bride's parents the young couple were assisted in receiving guests by their mothers.

The bride's table, covered with an English hand-embroidered silk fringed cloth was centred with a three-tier cake. Tall candles, Spring flowers and apple blossoms also decorated the table. Howard Colley, Nanaimo, uncle of the bride, proposed the toast.

For her honeymoon on the mainland Mrs. Kraft wore a tailored grey worsted suit with brushed wool shortie coat and yellow, grey and white accessories. She complemented her ensemble with a corsage bouquet of American beauty rosebuds and lily of the valley.

Jean Page Married In St. Mary's

A Mary Queen of Scots collar highlighted the wedding gown worn by Jean Olive Page, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander L. Page, Lee Avenue, when she became the bride of Glenn Lawrence Priestley, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Priestley, Hamiota Street, yesterday evening in St. Mary's Church. Archdeacon A. E. de L. Nunns officiated.

The gown was fashioned in shell eyelet over white slipper satin with form-fitting bodice and tulip sleeves. Her head-dress was a beaded tiara with finger-tip veil and she carried a bouquet of deep pink carnations, blue iris and white stock.

Maid of honor, Miss Joy Simms, and bridesmaid, Miss Mally Page, sister of the bride, wore identical gowns of floor-length organza over taffeta in pastel shades of blue and pink respectively.

Jack Owen was best man, and Brian Priestley, brother of the groom, and Errol McClelland, brother-in-law of the bride, were ushers.

The newlyweds received their guests under an archway of spring flowers at the reception held in Newstead Hall. A three-tiered wedding cake topped with pink roses centred the lace-covered bride's table.

J. M. Scouler, godfather of the bride, proposed the toast.

A three-piece blue wool suit with striped trim and navy and white accessories with corsage bouquets of gardenia and pink carnations was worn by Mrs. Priestley as she left for her honeymoon in Portland, Oregon.

Romantic Vienna Shares Interest With Province In Swinton-Dorman Wedding Mid-Afternoon Today

Vienna, Vancouver, and Victoria share interest in this afternoon's wedding in St. John's Anglican Church when Miss Marcia Winona Dorman repeated nuptial vows with Anthony Hans Swinton. Canon George Biddle officiated.

The ceremony united the daughter of Mr. Oswald H. Dorman, Newport Avenue, and late Mrs. Dorman, and son of Mrs. Elizabeth V. Schwitzer of Vancouver and Vienna, and the late Mr. Schwitzer.

Touched as if with an artist's brush were the all-white flowers tipped with blush pink that created the floral background for the beautiful blonde bride.

Enhancing the scene further was the bridal gown, an Alfredur French model of web-like Chantilly lace, fashioned with slender bodice designed with deep, square neckline and a soft suggestion of tucking. Ballerina-length skirt was slim to the hip-line where it fell in flares from circular pleats. The shoes were of white satin pumps, and gloves of soft, white kid.

A dainty halo hat of matching lace was framed in front with a row of seed pearls. At the back neckline clusters of orange blossoms were arranged in a fan-shaped-frou-frou of lace.

The bride's "something old" was an exquisite heirloom lace handkerchief carried by the groom's grandmother on her wedding day. Her father gave her in marriage.

To complete the symphony of white, the bride carried a bouquet of imported Cattleya orchids.

Rich in beauty was the gown of eggshell embroidered taffeta in ballerina-length worn by the bride's sister, Miss Roma Dorman, who attended her as maid of honor. To complement her original model gown, fashioned with portrait neckline, fashionable shoulder revers and full, flaring skirt, she chose a small velvet hat, matching accessories and carried a bouquet of contrasting tropical mauve orchids.

Frank Mitchell was best man and ushers were O. Keith Dorman and John Wallace.

Members of the immediate families and friends gathered at a reception held in the Union Club where the bride's table was set with vases of spring blooms, white candles and an all-white cake topped with pink rosebuds.

G. A. Yardley proposed the toast.

A tulle of soft wool in palest yellow with chic trim of brown overcheck at cuffs and collar, was worn by the new Mrs. Swinton for the honeymoon trip to Harrison Hot Springs. With her ensemble she chose a fingertip length topcoat, small brown-toned cloche hat and gloves, alligator shoes and companion bag and white orchid corsage bouquet.

Robert Manory, Vancouver, will be the home of the newlyweds.

In the city today to attend the wedding are Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dennison, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Moore, Mr. and Mrs. L. L. G. Bentley, Mr. and Mrs. John G. Prentice, Mr. and Mrs. Molnar, Mr. and Mrs. J. Gattin, Air-Commodore and Mrs. A. H. Hull, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mitchell, Messrs. Alfred Tornroos, Mrs. O. Korner, Mrs. O. Pick, all of Vancouver.

From Seattle came Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Sund.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Penny's Still Shoppin' Come Movin' Day Or High Water!

By PENNY SAVER

Land o'Goshen! Never did see such goings and coming as on this moving day of ours. But am I excited, confoosed or ready to throw a panic... hardly at all!

My boss, that's the women's editor, bless 'er, sat down three times this morning to write a story and from out of nowhere came three little men who took the desk out from under, placed her favorite little African lily plant upon her head and bid her good day!

In the newsroom you'd bet your last 100-dollar bill that, the night previously, there must have been one very wild-type party. Assorted types of boxes with markings of "Two Quarts you'll never know anything anyway!"

Our elevator is minus one of its doors. There is a grand view from the fifth floor stereo room... In fact, you don't have to look through the window, they've torn out part of the wall. A suggested new entrance to the department store beside us... for low flying customers?

And speaking of customers, that's you, and you, and oh yes, me, I'd better get down to me shopping chit-chat or I may be sweeping out this old home of ours... permanently.

Shades of summer picnics, if shopkeepers aren't displaying a fine supply of baskets for the coming outdoor occasions.

Hey, don't about at me that it's too early for such goings on. If ah remembers korrekctly, herself here, and me good family parked ourselves outdoors this very week... Thursday evening, in fact. We took trays of supper food and tripped gayly to the depths of the back garden to enjoy our first meal in the wide open spaces right in our own backyard.

Seems I've chattered a long way from the original picnic baskets but before I meander again, I'll tell you they're oval-shaped, about 15 inches long, and equipped with two metal handles. In springish floral patterns on daffydil yellow or jet black, they're selling at 75 pennies each.

Spot from candy on dress? Sponge first with cold water, then cleaning fluid.

Fine Kickapoo... "12 bottles of Assorted Swiss Bellingers"... and still others with slogans "You'll never know anything better and after you've tried it

IN TUNE WITH THE TIMES

Along about 1835 Royalty awarded the keeping of the light on Cape Spear, Newfoundland, to James Cantwell with the proviso that as long as there was a Cantwell living who wanted the job, no one else could have it. Now, 165 years later, Cantwells are still carrying on tending light a few miles south of St. John's. Tonight the saga of the 47 Cantwells born at Cape Spear and the history of their lighthouse will be heard on "Saturday Magazine" at its new time 6:30 over CBR, including interviews with this old Newfoundland family.

Tomorrow three more popular programs will leave the air. "The Big Show" with Talullah Bank. Radio times and programs are furnished by stations and networks and are subject to last minute changes. The Times assumes no responsibility for inaccurate listings.

head emcee-ing a host of stars including Fred Allen and Portland, Groucho Marx, Ginger Rogers and the French night-club chanteuse, Lucien Boyer, (no relation to Charles) will leave the air for good, (we hope). On KOMO at 3 p.m. "StarTime"—which has made for so much pleasant Sunday afternoon listening will ring down the curtain for the summer with a grand finale all-request program with your favorite singing stars doing the vocals. Orchestra numbers will include "Orpheus in the Underworld" overture; Waltz from "Masquerade Suite" by Khachaturian; Prelude to Act I of the "La Traviata"; "Vienna Life" by Strauss; and "Fiddle Faddle" by Leroy Anderson, on CBR at 5. "Stage 51" closes too with a repeat performance of Joseph Konrad's "Heart of Darkness" at 6 on CBR.

Tomorrow's highlight is undoubtedly Katherine Cornell's re-creation of her famous stage role in "Candida" by George Bernard Shaw, at 5:30 p.m. on KOMO. Until now Miss Cornell has refused to appear on the air except for a lone broadcast in aid of the Red Cross. Her consent to this appearance is indeed appreciated. Shaw himself wrote her in 1924 when she first assumed the stage lead, "Your success in Candida, and something blonde and expansive about your name, has created an ideal suburban British Candida in my imagination. Fancy my feeling on seeing in the photograph a gorgeous dark lady from the cradle of the human race!"

PRAIRIE FATHER OF 17 ENDS TAX DISPUTE BY HANGING SELF

SASKATOON (CP)—Kaspar Beck's unsuccessful three-year battle with the Income Tax Department over an income tax debt of $28,634, has ended. The body of the 67-year-old Allan district farmer, father of 17 children, was found Friday by his wife hanging in the garage at his home, 30 miles south-east of here.

Mr. Beck got much publicity when 24 quarter sections of his land were seized by the sheriff on order from Ottawa and sold by public auction last October in an effort to liquidate the tax debt. Only $22,100 was realized from the sale, which was subject to confirmation by the district court.

Unofficial estimates of the land's value went as high as $100,000 and Beck said he had paid $77,000 for his holdings. Some of the land was sold for as little as $100 a quarter-section.

Sugar Deal With Cuba To Boost Supply For Canada

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada has entered into a sugar deal with Cuba—a move, that may eventually help housewives fight rising living costs.

Details of the deal, which involves a complex tariff-cutting arrangement, likely will be announced soon.

So far as could be learned, the significant points are these: 1. Canada has agreed to fix a quota whereby Cuba can ship in about 150,000,000 pounds of sugar at a more favorable tariff cost. This is more than 15 times the 8,900,000 pounds Cuba shipped last year.

2. Cuba will extend trade concessions to Canada, equal to those granted to the United States—giving Canada a better chance to compete with the U.S. on certain manufactured goods.

3. Sugar arriving in Canada will be charged the normal tariff of about $1.28 a hundredweight—the most-favored-nation rate. Commonwealth countries get a preferred sugar rate of only 28 cents a hundredweight. 4. Importers buying Cuban sugar up to the quota level will be able to apply to a government agency and obtain a rebate up to the Commonwealth level.

Official quarters say this is not a subsidy, but merely a trade concession.

The Dominican Republic, another sugar supplier, will obtain the same kind of terms but in this case no quota will be fixed. Canada will be able to turn off the tariff tap when she likes.

Previously the Commonwealth countries, including Australia, Jamaica and Fiji, held a virtual monopoly in the Canadian sugar market.

Canada imports about 1,265,000,000 pounds of raw sugar a year. The Commonwealth has supplied most of it.

The experts believe that with equal tariffs, Cuba can undersell the Commonwealth suppliers by about 85 cents a hundredweight. The small initial quota likely will be increased in the future if the deal works out.

In that way, Cuba will be able to obtain a firm foothold on the Canadian sugar market and the price thereby may become more competitive.

The Commonwealth countries voiced opposition to the move, negotiated at Torquay, England.

Impressed With Canada And Canadians

Hon. Stanley Woodward, U.S. Ambassador to Canada, was met at Patricia Bay airport yesterday by Col. R. L. Mitchell, left, aide to Lieutenant-Governor Clarence Wallace, and Frederick W. Hinkle, U.S. consul here. The U.S. ambassador is in Victoria concluding a tour of the nation to "see the country and meet the people."

Victoria 'Fitting Climax' To Tour, Says Envoy

"Coming to Victoria is a fitting climax to a trip across Canada," Hon. Stanley Woodward, United States ambassador to Canada, said late Friday at Patricia Bay airport as he stepped from the U.S. Army Air Force B-17 that brought him and his party from Vancouver.

"This is my first trip across," the tall, distinguished diplomat said. "I set out to see the country, meet the people, and pay my respects to your leaders."

"Having done that, I can say that I'm mightily impressed with Canada. It's a beautiful country," the ambassador said.

There were a good many questions that could have been asked, but he preferred at this time just to "enjoy the trip."

GREETED BY U.S. CONSUL

On hand to greet Mr. Woodward were Frederick W. Hinkle, U.S. consul in Victoria, who renewed an acquaintance begun 25 years ago in Washington, D.C., Mrs. Hinkle and Vice-Consul and Mrs. William M. Oliver.

Representing Lieutenant-Governor Clarence Wallace was his aide, Col. R. L. Mitchell.

Mr. Woodward was guest of honor at an official dinner at Government House Friday night, and at a luncheon at noon today in the Union Club where Premier Byron Johnson was host.

This afternoon they are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hinkle at a reception at Victoria Golf Club.

Wednesday Mr. Woodward will give an address to a joint meeting at the Empress Hotel of the Canadian Club and Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

Traveling with him are Mrs. Woodward, labor attaché Joseph Godson and Mrs. Godson; second secretary L. Dean Brown and Mrs. Brown; third secretary Philip C. Habib and Mrs. Habib, and Col. R. W. Strong and Maj. Reynold Craddock, air attachés.

Beginning today, all rezoning applications submitted by City Council to the commission for consideration will be carefully examined to see that they conform to town planning principles and zoning by-laws.

The commission at a meeting Thursday appointed three committees to inquire into all rezoning applications. J. H. Doughty-Davies, commission head, will act in an advisory capacity to the committees.

Mr. Doughty-Davies told the commission that disregard of correct zoning practices on grounds of sympathy for the applicant was usually detrimental to both applicant and community.

Canadians Told To Fight With 'Guts'

Stiff Order Given Commonwealth Men Before Big Chinese Offensive

In a cable just passed through censorship, Bill Boss, Canadian Press correspondent with the P.C.I.L. in Korea, tells of an order of the day issued to the British Commonwealth Brigade last Monday. It was just before the big Chinese drive, later repulsed, to capture Seoul. Censorship does not permit Boss to name the unit.

By BILL BOSS

WEST CENTRAL SECTOR, Korea (CP)—An order of the day calling on the 28th British Commonwealth Brigade to fight with "guts" now that "the menace of the urgent hour is upon us," was issued Monday by Brigadier George Taylor, commanding officer.

(In later cables, Boss told of United Nations mountain troops exploiting a breather offered by a lull in the enemy's spring offensive to strengthen positions Tuesday through Friday. These were north of the Han River in a series of 300-foot hills east of Seoul.)

Brig. Taylor — whose Canadians, Australians and Britons saved the Eighth Army's bacon last week by stopping the Chinese advance cold in the central sector north of Kapyong — issued his order on mimeographed sheets.

It read: "The British Commonwealth Brigade has been given the most important job in a big battle. We are to hold high ground. As long as this is held the enemy cannot break into our positions."

CAN HOLD FOR WEEKS

"General Van Fleet (Lt.-Gen. James A. Van Fleet, Allied ground commander) has decided to destroy the enemy on ground of our own choosing. In our strong positions we can hold on for weeks."

"Don't forget concealment and surprise and work like beavers to strengthen positions. As men and soldiers you have full measure of our anti-like opponents. The menace of the urgent hour is upon us. I am confident that we will not fail. Now is the time for leadership and guts."

From the first base provided by the U.N. mountain troops, other friendly forces Friday kicked off in an attempt to find Chinese whose "spring offensive" seems to have petered out in this sector.

MOUNTAINEERS RELAX

The mountaineers, who have been manning a strong defence line, hopeful that the enemy would hurl his men at their perimeter, relaxed after holding the United Nations front here since Tuesday. They've used every daylight hour to strengthen their line which ran along a ridge of hills.

The mile-long ridge is in a circular arc from north of the Han at a height varying from 250 to 300 feet.

They were ready for enemy attack at any time in any strength. The ridge bristled with every weapon in the battalion's armory, plus a healthy number of others, including tanks and mortars loaned by other formations.

Extra artillery was allotted, too. The force was ready and determined to hold for weeks if necessary, even if cut off.

Friday the commanding officer made rest the number one priority, and rest they did, regretful only that a strong spring sun had given way to a persistent drizzle and thickly-overcast skies.

Ask Legislators To Union Meeting

A representative group of members of the Legislature will appear before a mass meeting of trade unionists in Vancouver at the end of the month to give their views on hospital insurance.

The three major labor groups, A.F. of L., C.C. of L. and standard railwaymen are planning the meeting for May 29 following their campaign against increased insurance premiums and 10-day charges.

All members of the Legislature from the lower mainland are being invited and plan to have one cabinet minister, one Coalition backbencher, one C.C.F. member and Mrs. Tilly Rolston, Independent, speak.
